AT A CRISIS IN PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

ASSISTANT SECY. ANDREWS MAKES STATEMENT TODAY

ENTIRE SITUATION IS NOW UP TO CONGRESS, SAID THE ADMINISTRATOR

THAT BODY CAN GO AHEAD,
STAND STILL OR RETREAT,
SAYS ANDREWS

Washington, Jan. 31.—(UP)—A crisis has been reached in prohibition enforcement, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews said today.

The entire situation has been put up to congress and it is up to that body to go ahead, stand still, or retreat, Andrews said.

"We have built up an efficient organization that has just begun to function properly," he said. "But with dual responsibility at headquarters and the medicinal spirit question unsolved there is really a leash holding the force in check."

Passage of the dry reorganization bill is essential to put prohibition units under one leadership, divorced from the internal revenue bureau, Andrews said.

The medicinal whiskey bill is necessary to prevent bootleggers from counterfeiting standard brands of liquor and at the same time assure a pure supply of medicinal liquor, he said.

Andrews said also that elimination of the $500,000 fund by congress for undercover work would seriously injure law enforcement.

"Fire must be fought with fire at times and prohibition cannot be successful without secret service work," Andrews said. "We do not want to trap individuals, but are after commercial traffickers in liquor. I hope congress will change its mind and make the money available. Undercover agents have been warned not to ensnare citizens, but it is within the law to give a known criminal opportunity to trap himself."

War on moonshiners was declared by Andrews. He sent administrators into the field with orders to concentrate on illicit distilling operations. Administrators were told to check up on all internal revenue laws, as it is sometimes easier to convict violators under measures other than the Volstead act.

Moonshine squads may be organized by administrators to fight "white mule," as Andrews believes "home distillation" will soon be the only source of supply for bootleggers.

Consideration of the house bill to place prohibition enforcement officers under civil service was blocked in the senate today by Senator Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, who said it was "the only dry bill the wets are for."

"There are too many prohibition officers that we ought to get rid of now, without getting more under civil service," said Norbeck.

SEEK FARMER FOLLOWING DEATH OF MISSOURI MAN

Louisiana, Mo., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Pike county authorities hunted Thomas Baker, farmer, today following the death in a hospital at Hannibal of Richard Clinton, 40, from bullet wounds inflicted by Baker.

In a statement made just before his death, Clinton said he knew no reason for Baker's anger. The two men lived with their wives in the same house near McCune station.

The shooting occurred when the two men met at night on a high hill near their home. Two shots were fired. Baker fled before Clinton was found, mortally wounded.

ARRESTED AS A CONVICTED MURDERER AFTER REFORMING

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Earl J. Clark, arrested as a convicted murderer in Minot, N. D., where he had established a successful business, was scheduled to appear in superior court today to hear a ruling on his motion asking that his case be reopened.

If the request is refused, Clark said he would appeal to the state supreme court.

A previous appeal to the high tribunal was automatically nullified when Clark broke jail with five other prisoners before going to North Dakota where he was later recognized by one of his own employees.

Clark was convicted of slaying Charles Silva, sailor, in a San Pedro hotel after quarreling over a young woman.

Foreigners Fear Chinese New Year Celebration

SURVIVOR OF GUN BATTLE NEAR DEATH

Detroit, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Patrolman Edward Gerring lay near death in a hospital today, the only survivor of a gun battle between two policemen and two bandits.

The dead are: Patrolman Stacey Mizner, and Edward Martinale, Ray O'Neil, the robbers.

Gerring is suffering from three bullet wounds.

Police here and in Chicago today were investigating possibility that "Terrible Tommy" O'Connor may be directing a gang of gunmen of which Martindale and O'Neil were members. O'Connor is a gunman who escaped from the Cook county jail the night before he was to have been executed for the murder of a policeman.

ST. CLOUD THEATER ORGANIST CALLED A HEROINE TODAY

MISS LOUISE MEANS STUCK TO POST AND AVERTED A RIOT

FIRE IN PROJECTION ROOM, HER MUSIC STILLS THE TUMULT

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Miss Louise Means, organist at the Sherman theatre here, was acclaimed a heroine today, for staying by her post and thereby averting a riot when fire broke out in the moving picture house Sunday.

Students from St. Benedict's and St. John's colleges were packed in the playhouse for the afternoon performance when fire burst forth from the projection room. In an instant the aisles and exits were jammed with shouting and screaming students. They jumped over rows of seats and jostled each other in their efforts to escape.

Miss Means struck up a march on the organ which turned the frightened mob into an orderly body and soon the jams about the doors gave way to some semblance of the ordinary audience filing out of a theatre at the end of a performance.

The organist played until the last patron had gotten out of the building before she left her bench.

Firemen succeeded in confining the flames about the projection room. The blaze was then extinguished without serious damage.

COFFEY FINALLY CONFESSES HE MURDERED WIFE

BOND SALESMAN AND ITINER-
ANT EVANGELIST KILLED
HER WHILE SHE SLEPT

WILL BE ARRAIGNED TODAY AT LANCASTER, WIS., ON MUR-DER CHARGE

Lancaster, Wis., Jan. 31.—(UP)—After having confessed that he murdered his wife while she slept, William N. Coffey, bond salesman and itinerant evangelist, today will be arraigned on the murder charge.

Coffey confessed late yesterday after a long grilling by county authorities. Previously he had made confessions to the killing—a brutal crime in which he hit the woman with a baseball bat and then dismembered the body, hiding each part separately—but had maintained it was in self defense.

Yesterday after having been questioned by alienists and county authorities, Coffey admitted he killed his wife while she slept. He said he killed her because he did not want his first wife to learn he was a bigamist.

REPORT OF POLICEMAN
DID NOT FIT FACTS

DOCTORS SEEK TO SAVE VICTIMS OF A MADMAN

POLICE NOW SEEKING FOR ALEX
MARIS, HIDING IN UNDERWORLD

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(UP)—While doctors fought to save the lives of two persons frightfully gashed by the knife of a madman, police here today doubled their efforts to find Alex Maris, the assailant believed hidden in the haunts of the underworld.

Maris, recently separated from his wife, was named by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Atwood as they lay on hospital cots, as the assailant who stabbed and ripped their bodies in their home late Saturday night. The madman, they said believed they were responsible for his marital difficulties.

The Atwoods, related by marriage to Maris, were preparing their four children for the night's sleep when Maris entered in search of his wife. Atwood had just gone to bed and Mrs. Atwood was nursing her 3-month old child. Maris asked for his wife and when told she was not there said, "Well I'll go in and say good-night to Floyd."

He went into the bed room from whence Mrs. Atwood heard the frightened screams of her husband. She rushed to his aid and found the enraged Maris slashing and stabbing with a razor-like knife. Atwood was bleeding from gashes in his throat and chest as Mrs. Atwood lunged at Maris only to be beaten down and cut by the madman. He fractured her ribs, struck her in the body with his knife and then slashed her leg from knee to ankle. She finally drove him off, however, when she snatched up a heavy candle stick which she brandished like a club.

Mrs. Atwood then dragged her wounded husband outside where she attracted the attention of neighbors, who in turn called the police and ambulance.

Both were taken to a hospital where doctors found it necessary to take more than 200 stitches in their lacerated bodies before their wounds were closed.

Atwood with wounds about his throat and chest and another which pierced his lungs, was said by doctors to be in a critical condition. Mrs. Atwood, although injured internally, besides the gashes and fractured ribs was given an even chance for recovery.

The police were aided in the manhunt today by State Representative Harold R. Atwood, Winona, brother of the attacked man. Rep. Atwood was at the bedside of the couple a large part of Sunday and secured information with which he hopes to bring about the apprehension of Maris.

Thus far no mention of a strike has been made on the convention floor.

John L. Lewis, president of the miners, declared at the opening of the present convention that the miners would not accept a wage scale set on competitive basis with the wages of non-union miners. Since then, discussion of the wage problem has been confined to the meeting of the wage scale committee, which has been canvassing more than 200 resolutions from local unions regarding wages and working conditions.

Two hundred thousand strikers participated this afternoon in a protest demonstration.

NEW TYPE OF MISCREANT IS 'KISSING BANDIT'

Austin, Minn., Jan. 31.—(UP)—The "kissing bandit" who demands affection of girls here at the point of a gun was being sought by police here today as angry citizens demanded his capture and arrest.

High school girls and teachers have become the particular target of this strange thief who asks nothing more valuable than a kiss.

Two teachers fought free from the man's embraces although a third girl lacked courage in the face of a gun to refuse his request.

Women have become so alarmed by the strange raids that they do not venture out after dark unless escorted.

SEEK TO SECURE GUARANTEE OF PEACE IN EUROPE

Berlin, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The inter-allied commission for the military control of Germany withdrew from that country today as a result of the series of conferences, beginning with Locarno, for the resurrection of friendship and the guarantee of peace in Europe.

The removal was accomplished without fire or drums or German tears. The nationalists in Germany for years characterized the organization, created to oversee Germany's compliance with Versailles treaty disarmament, as "a sufficing commission entrusted with military espionage."

Chancellor Wilhelm Marx's new cabinet met for the first time today and approved the agreement reached at Paris with respect to German disarmament and the regulation of the problem of German fortifications on the eastern frontier.

Terminating of allied control of German disarmament awaited only this approval. The League of Nations will take over the responsibilities hitherto borne by the commission at midnight tonight.

DRAFTING WAGE DEMANDS OF SOFT COAL MINERS

OFFICERS OF THE UNITED MINE WORKERS CLEARING WAY FOR ACTION

WAGE SCALE COMMITTEE IS TO MAKE REPORT TUESDAY OR WEDNESDAY

By GERALD P. OVERTON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—Officers of the United Mine Workers today were clearing the way for the drafting of wage demands for a new contract in the bituminous coal industry and it is expected the report of the wage scale committee will be made Tuesday or Wednesday.

Submission of the recommendations of the wage scale committee will bring out on the floor of the convention the main issue with which the present convention must grapple.

Debate on the report bill is expected to furnish an opportunity to sound the sentiment of the 1,500 delegates on a strike move in the bituminous fields should the joint convention between operators and miners fail to agree on terms of a new contract. This conference will be at Miami, Fla., Feb. 14.

Thus far no mention of a strike has been made on the convention floor.

John L. Lewis, president of the miners, declared at the opening of the present convention that the miners would not accept a wage scale set on competitive basis with the wages of non-union miners. Since then, discussion of the wage problem has been confined to the meeting of the wage scale committee, which has been canvassing more than 200 resolutions from local unions regarding wages and working conditions.

Four matches are scheduled for today.

Tiff Denton, Kansas City, vs. Arthur Thurnblad, Chicago.

Allen Hall, St. Louis, vs. Raimondo Campanioni, Havana.

Otto Reisel, Philadelphia, vs. Chas. McCourt, Cleveland.

August Kleckhefer, Chicago, vs. Leonard Kinney, Chicago.

Gus Conpulos of Detroit and Earl Lookabaugh of Lindenwood, Ill., are entered but do not have matches today.

UNCLOTHED WOMAN FOUND APPARENTLY MURDERED IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—(UP)—An unclothed woman, believed to be Mrs. Elsie Merrill, about 45, was found apparently murdered, lying on a bed in her squalid home early today.

Police answered the call of a man purporting to be the landlord, who said the woman was ill. When they arrived they discovered she was dead.

An examination revealed that her skull had been crushed and there were contusions about her body.

Although the house was filthy and unkempt there were no evidences of a struggle.

Police held John Ushoff, 45, for questioning. Ushoff who is said to have occupied the squalid home with Mrs. Merrill is believed to be the 'landlord.'

INHABITANTS OF LOWLANDS TAKE TO HILLS

LEVEES IN ARKANSAS AFFECTED
BY ANOTHER HIGH
WATER AREA

MORE THAN 200 REFUGEES
FLOCK TO BRASSFIELD,
ARKANSAS

Harrisburg, Ill., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Flood conditions from here to the Ohio river at Shawneetown assumed ominous proportions today following a six-inch rise in the river overnight.

The stage at Shawneetown was reported 47.8 feet early today and rising rapidly.

Similar conditions prevailed at Roselclair, where inhabitants of lowlands were moving back to the hills.

Brassfield, Ark., Jan. 31.—Flood refugees, many of them penniless and inadequately clothed, arrived here today in ever-increasing numbers as the levee below McClelland, Ark., gave way and inundated hundreds of additional acres of rich farm land.

The latest levee break occurred unexpectedly today as workers concentrated on what appeared the hopeless task of keeping the river walls intact at Des Arc, Devall's Bluff and Brassfield. Water was seeping through so rapidly that the sand washed out almost as soon as desperate workers could bank it in.

Water is a foot deep on the streets of Devall's Bluff, and rising rapidly. The first floor of the Central Hotel there was abandoned last night.

It is estimated that more than 200 refugees are here. They were curled up last night in every available sleeping place. Tears mingled with laughter as they straggled into the city, carrying their most cherished possessions in bundles, and resigned themselves to the circumstances.

Fifty tents have been erected on high ground by the national guard. These housed the bulk of the homeless. Governor Martineau has been asked to rush food and clothing. Refugees have requested a relief train dispatched here as soon as possible.

NATIONAL THREE CUSHION BILLIARD CHAMPION PLAY

Chicago, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Opening matches in the national three cushion billiard championship start today with ten players contesting for the rich prizes the championship offers.

Only one foreigner is entered for the title now held by Otto Reisel of Philadelphia. He is Raimondo Campanioni of Havana who is rated the champion of Cuba.

Four matches are scheduled for today.

Tiff Denton, Kansas City, vs. Arthur Thurnblad, Chicago.

Allen Hall, St. Louis, vs. Raimondo Campanioni, Havana.

Otto Reisel, Philadelphia, vs. Chas. McCourt, Cleveland.

August Kleckhefer, Chicago, vs. Leonard Kinney, Chicago.

Gus Conpulos of Detroit and Earl Lookabaugh of Lindenwood, Ill., are entered but do not have matches today.

FREIGHTER SINKS IN COLLISION ON LOWER DELAWARE

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The American freighter Juvigny was sunk in lower Delaware river today when she collided in a fog with the British steamer Valemore, below Reedy island. The Juvigny sunk within twenty minutes.

Thirty members of the Juvigny's crew were taken off in small boats to the Valemore and were brought here.

There were no casualties, according to radio from the Valemore.

PRES. COOLIDGE HOPES FOR ANOTHER ARMS CONFERENCE

OPTIMISTIC DESPITE WARS AND RUMORS OF
WAR

MADE PLAIN IN HIS ADDRESS AT GOVERNMENT BUSINESS MEETING

Washington, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Despite wars and rumors of wars, President Coolidge still hopes for another Washington arms conference.

This was made plain in his address Saturday night at the government business meeting when Mr. Coolidge called upon the United States to lead the way toward international disarmament and harmony.

"As a nation we are advocates of peace," the president declared. "Not only should we refrain from any act which might be construed as calling for competition in armament but rather should we spend our every effort to eliminate such competition."

"We cannot and should not divorce our own interests in this direction from the interests of other nations. Rather should we view the matter from the standpoint of the best interests of all nations."

This statement is in line with numerous similar assertions by Mr. Coolidge since the Geneva conference on disarmament failed to progress.

CHAPLIN DIVORCE MELEE IS IN ITS FOURTH WEEK

OPPOSING COUNSEL PREPARE TO UNTWIST LEGAL
TANGLE

THREATS MADE TO FILE CON-
TEMPT PROCEEDINGS AGAINST
ATTORNEY WRIGHT

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The Chaplin divorce melee went into its fourth week today, with opposing counsel preparing to untwist the legal tangle that had its inception with the filing of the sensational divorce complaint by Lita Grey Chaplin against her comedian husband, Charlie Chaplin.

Possible action today loomed in the threat of attorneys for Mrs. Chaplin to file contempt proceedings against Lloyd Wright, personal attorney for Chaplin, who refused to answer two hundred questions in a deposition in connection with the actor's financial affairs.

Wright argued that he would not be privileged, as Chaplin's attorney, to reveal secrets of the comedian.

The following action is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday:

A hearing will be held on the demurrer filed by Attorney Wright, in which he contends he has no knowledge of the film comedian's assets and therefore cannot be made a party to the divorce suit.

Arguments are scheduled to be heard in the state supreme court on the writ of prohibition which has tied up the receivership of Chaplin's property in California and prevented Mrs. Chaplin from collecting alimony and other awards.

An effort to secure exemption of Chaplin films from the government tax liens, which have tied up the comedian's property here, will be made by attorneys for United Artists in federal court Wednesday.

FEAR IT MAY BE MADE ANTI FOREIGN CLASH

FOREIGN RESIDENTS OF SHANG-
HAI STAY AWAY FROM HO-
TELS AND WATERFRONT

2 FORMER ENGLISH PREMIERS
ENDORSE BRITISH CHINESE
POLICY

Shanghai, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Thousands of foreigners, awaiting the impending fall of the city before the invading armies of South China, today waited tensely in fear that celebration of the Chinese new year might be transformed into an anti-foreign demonstration.

Ken Wells, associate editor of the American Registered China Courier, was arrested on a British warrant charging him with failure to pay taxes; a few hours later armed Chinese abducted him and also seized Francis Zia, Chinese editor of the same paper.

Brought before Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, chief of the defending armies of Shanghai, they were charged with sedition and threatened with execution. Insistent demands by the American consul that they be released have been unavailing.

Wells, authorities said, has admitted he was offered a nationalist advisorship by South China, but denied he had accepted. His arrest on a technical charge and the subsequent abduction was interpreted to have been provoked by the antagonistic attitude of the Courier to the north China cause and its support of the Cantonese government.

These incidents were received with some foreboding in the already uneasy foreign quarters, but a report demanding from Hankow that Foreign Minister Chen and British Charge D'Affaires O'Malley late last night decided to make public today the results of their negotiations encouraged foreign residents to believe untoward developments would be forestalled.

Foreign residents in the crowded concessions have been cautioned to remain away from hotels, the water front and all public squares during the day.

London, Jan. 31.—Two former premiers, David Lloyd-George and Ramsay MacDonald, representing respectively the liberal and labor opposition to the conservative government, have endorsed the Chinese policy outlined by Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain on which Britain today was seeking a settlement in China.

"Chamberlain has shown great courage and moderation," Lloyd-George said. "There is a considerable vision in the general lines that are being followed in the British negotiations."

MacDonald, congratulating the foreign secretary for the "excellency" of his statement, urged Foreign Minister Chen, now negotiating with British Charge D'Affaires O'Malley at Hankow, China, for return of certain rights to China, to face the facts.

Chamberlain's proposal to treat with both northern and southern Chinese factions to work out a basis for peace, while withholding recognition of any factional government, came as a distinct surprise to the conservative government's opponents.

"Treaty revision has become so insistent," an official in touch with the British foreign office said, "and it is so fundamentally reasonable that despite difficulties we must try to negotiate with the contending governments."

"We are prepared to enter local arrangements according to particular circumstances that obtain in each port, either for amalgamation of administration with that of foreign areas under Chinese control or under some other method that will place the administration in the hands of the Chinese."

Hankow, China, Jan. 31.—Mobs were menacing foreigners remaining in Changsha, Hunan province, south of Hankow, and a British gunboat was guarding the island on which they have taken protection, a report from Hunan said today.

The Spanish Catholic mission was reported to have ordered the with-

UNCLOTHED WOMAN FOUND APPARENTLY MURDERED IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—(UP)—An unclothed woman, believed to be Mrs. Elsie Merrill, about 45, was found apparently murdered, lying on a bed in her squalid home early today.

Police answered the call of a man purporting to be the landlord, who said the woman was ill. When they arrived they discovered she was dead. An examination revealed that her skull had been crushed and there were contusions about her body.

Although the house was filthy and unkempt there were no evidences of a struggle.

Police held John Ushoff, 45, for questioning. Ushoff who is said to have occupied the squalid home with Mrs. Merrill is believed to be the 'landlord.'

INHABITANTS OF LOWLANDS TAKE TO HILLS

LEVEES IN ARKANSAS AFFECTED
BY ANOTHER HIGH
WATER AREA

MORE THAN 200 REFUGEES
FLOCK TO BRASSFIELD,
ARKANSAS

Harrisburg, Ill., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Flood conditions from here to the Ohio river at Shawneetown assumed ominous proportions today following a six-inch rise in the river overnight.

The stage at Shawneetown was reported 47.8 feet early today and rising rapidly.

Similar conditions prevailed at Roseclaire, where inhabitants of lowlands were moving back to the hills.

Brassfield, Ark., Jan. 31.—Flood refugees, many of them penniless and inadequately clothed, arrived here today in ever-increasing numbers as the levee below McClelland, Ark., gave way and inundated hundreds of additional acres of rich farm land.

The latest levee break occurred unexpectedly today as workers concentrated on what appeared the hopeless task of keeping the river walls intact at Des Arc, Devall's Bluff and Brassfield. Water was seeping through so rapidly that the sand washed out almost as soon as desperate workers could bank it in.

Water is a foot deep on the streets of Devall's Bluff, and rising rapidly. The first floor of the Central Hotel there was abandoned last night.

It is estimated that more than 200 refugees are here. They were curled up last night in every available sleeping place. Tears mingled with laughter as they struggled into the city, carrying their most cherished possessions in bundles, and resigned themselves to the circumstances.

Fifty tents have been erected on high ground by the national guard. These housed the bulk of the homeless. Governor Martineau has been asked to rush food and clothing. Refugees have requested a relief train dispatched here as soon as possible.

NATIONAL THREE CUSHION BILLIARD CHAMPION PLAY

Chicago, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Opening matches in the national three cushion billiard championship start today with ten players contesting for its rich prizes the championship offers.

Only one foreigner is entered for the title now held by Otto Reisel of Philadelphia. He is Raimondo Campanioni of Havana who is rated the champion of Cuba.

Four matches are scheduled for today.

Thurndall, Kansas City, vs. Arthur Thurnbull, Chicago.

Allen Hall, St. Louis, vs. Raimondo Campanioni, Havana.

Otto Reisel, Philadelphia, vs. Chas. McCourt, Cleveland.

August Kleckhefer, Chicago, vs. Leonard Kinney, Chicago.

Gus Conpuolos of Detroit and Earl Lookabaugh of Lindenwood, Ill., are entered but do not have matches today.

FREIGHTER SINKS IN COLLISION ON LOWER DELAWARE

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The American freighter Juvigny was sunk in lower Delaware river today when she collided in a fog with the British steamer Valemore, below Reedy island. The Juvigny sunk within twenty minutes.

Thirty members of the Juvigny's crew were taken off in small boats to the Valemore and were brought here.

There were no casualties, according to radio from the Valemore.

PRES. COOLIDGE HOPES FOR ANOTHER ARMS CONFERENCE

OPTIMISTIC DESPITE WARS AND RUMORS OF
WAR

MADE PLAIN IN HIS ADDRESS AT GOVERNMENT BUSINESS MEETING

Washington, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Despite wars and rumors of wars, President Coolidge still hopes for another Washington arms conference.

This was made plain in his address Saturday night at the government business meeting when Mr. Coolidge called upon the United States to lead the way toward international disarmament and harmony.

"As a nation we are advocates of peace," the president declared. "Not only should we refrain from any act which might be construed as calling for competition in armament but rather should we spend our every effort to eliminate such competition."

"We cannot and should not divorce our own interests in this direction from the interests of other nations. Rather should we view the matter from the standpoint of the best interests of all nations."

This statement is in line with numerous similar assertions by Mr. Coolidge since the Geneva conference on disarmament failed to progress.

CHAPLIN DIVORCE MELEE IS IN ITS FOURTH WEEK

OPPOSING COUNSEL PREPARE TO UNTWIST LEGAL
TANGLE

THREATS MADE TO FILE CON-
TEMPT PROCEEDINGS AGAINST
ATTORNEY WRIGHT

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The Chaplin divorce melee went into its fourth week today, with opposing counsel preparing to untwist the legal tangle that had its inception with the filing of the sensational divorce complaint by Lita Grey Chaplin against her comedian husband, Charlie Chaplin.

Possible action today loomed in the threat of attorneys for Mrs. Chaplin to file contempt proceedings against Lloyd Wright, personal attorney for Chaplin, who refused to answer two hundred questions in a deposition in connection with the actor's financial affairs.

Wright argued that he would not be privileged, as Chaplin's attorney, to reveal secrets of the comedian.

The following action is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday:

A hearing will be held on the demurrer filed by Attorney Wright, in which he contends he has no knowledge of the film comedian's assets and therefore cannot be made a party to the divorce suit.

Arguments are scheduled to be heard in the state supreme court on the writ of prohibition which has tied up the receivership of Chaplin's property in California and prevented Mrs. Chaplin from collecting alimony and other awards.

An effort to secure exemption of Chaplin films from the government tax liens, which have tied up the comedian's property here, will be made by attorneys for United Artists in federal court Wednesday.

FEAR IT MAY BE MADE ANTI FOREIGN CLASH

FOREIGN RESIDENTS OF SHANG-
HAI STAY AWAY FROM HO-
TELS AND WATERFRONT

2 FORMER ENGLISH PREMIERS
ENDORSE BRITISH CHINESE
POLICY

Shanghai, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Thousands of foreigners, awaiting the impending fall of the city before the invading armies of South China, today waited tensely in fear that celebration of the Chinese new year might be transformed into an anti-foreign demonstration.

Ken Wells, associate editor of the American Registered China Courier, was arrested on a British warrant charging him with failure to pay taxes; a few hours later armed Chinese abducted him and also seized Francis Zia, Chinese editor of the same paper.

Brought before Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, chief of the defending armies of Shanghai, they were charged with sedition and threatened with execution. Insistent demands by the American consul that they be released have been unavailing.

Wells, authorities said, had admitted he was offered a nationalist advisorship by South China, but denied he had accepted. His arrest on a technical charge and the subsequent abduction was interpreted to have been provoked by the antagonistic attitude of the Courier to the north China cause and its support of the Cantonese government.

These incidents were received with some foreboding in the already uneasy foreign quarters, but a report demanding from Hankow that Foreign Minister Chen and British Charge D'Affaires O'Malley late last night decided to make public today the results of their negotiations encouraged foreign residents to believe untoward developments would be forestalled.

Foreign residents in the crowded concessions have been cautioned to remain away from hotels, the waterfront and all public squares during the day.

London, Jan. 31.—Two former premiers, David Lloyd-George and Ramsay MacDonald, representing respectively the liberal and labor opposition to the conservative government, have endorsed the Chinese policy outlined by Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain on which Britain today was seeking a settlement in China.

"Chamberlain has shown great courage and moderation," Lloyd-George said. "There is a considerable vision in the general lines that are being followed in the British negotiations."

MacDonald, congratulating the foreign secretary for the "excellency" of his statement, urged Foreign Minister Chen, now negotiating with British Charge D'Affaires O'Malley at Hankow, China, for return of certain rights to China, to face the facts.

Chamberlain's proposal to treat with both northern and southern Chinese factions to work out a basis for peace, while withholding recognition of any factional government, came as a distinct surprise to the conservative government's opponents.

"Treaty revision has become so insistent," an official in touch with the British foreign office said, "and it is so fundamentally reasonable that despite difficulties we must try to negotiate with the contending governments."

"We are prepared to enter local arrangements according to particular circumstances that obtain in each port, either for amalgamation of administration with that of foreign areas under Chinese control or under some other method that will place the administration in the hands of the Chinese."

Hankow, China, Jan. 31.—Mobs were menacing foreigners remaining in Changsha, Hunan province, south of Hankow, and a British gunboat was guarding the island on which they have taken protection, a report from Hunan said today.

The Spanish Catholic mission was reported to have ordered the with-

8 PRISONERS
QUIETLY SLIP
FROM PRISON

USE INGENUOUS DEVICE TO OPEN
THE ROW OF CELLS

AT THE BELLEVILLE, ILL., ST.
CLAIR COUNTY JAIL

Belleville, Ill., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Opening a row of cells at the St. Clair county jail here last night by an ingenious device, eight prisoners quietly made their escape before some of the men in the same tier with them knew what had taken place.

The tier in which the men were kept was opened by a hook made from a coat hanger with which the device that controlled the locks on all the cells was opened.

After releasing themselves from their cells the eight prisoners sawed a bar, slid down a rope into the jail yard and climbed a high wall to freedom.

No transportation was commandeered and all indications pointed to a carefully planned escape.

Only the eight men participating in the plans went free. Others whose cells were opened had clustered about the window through which the eight had gone. Apparently all had their opportunity to participate in the delivery but preferred to serve out their sentences.

Cries of "jail break" from Paul Scallie, East St. Louis, Ill., a trusty, shortly after the last of the eight had disappeared through the window gave authorities the first indication of any disorder in the prison. By the time they had run to the cell room and back down stairs to the yard, the men had disappeared.

A young corporal was drilling some men when one of them stepped out from the ranks and remarked in an angry voice: "You couldn't drill a company of ducks!"

Next morning he was brought before the colonel, who ordered him to be taken out and given ten minutes in which to change his mind.

When the time was up the man was brought in again and asked if he had altered his opinion. He replied in the affirmative, and was then asked:

"And what conclusion have you come to?"

"That he could not drill one duck sir," was the quick, if somewhat astonishingly, reply.

Keep Busy

Nine-tenths of the miseries and woes of mankind proceed from idleness; with men of quick minds, to whom it is especially pernicious, this habit is commonly the fruit of many disappointments and schemes oft baffled; and men fall in their schemes not so much for want of strength as for their ill direction of it. The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers on a single object, can accomplish something. The drop of water by continued falling bores its passage through the hardest rock; the hasty torrent rushes over it with hideous roar, and leaves no trace behind.

It Must Have Been Good

"What are you asking for this sketch?" inquired Sir Joshua Reynolds of an old picture dealer.

"Twenty guineas, your honor," replied the dealer.

"Twenty pence, I suppose you mean," said Reynolds.

"No, sir," answered the dealer. "I would have taken twenty pence for it this morning; but, if you think it worth looking at, all the world will think it worth buying."

Sir Joshua Reynolds ordered the sketch sent home.—Market for Exchange.

Rewrote Overture

One of the operas of Rossini, the Italian composer, has an overture and a half, just because Rossini, like most men of all ages, dreaded to leave his bed. Writing in bed, he had partly completed an overture when he dropped off to sleep. The manuscript rolled to the floor and when Rossini awoke, he tried to recover the paper without leaving the bed. He found that he could not reach it, and, rather than get up, he started anew.

BROKE FISHING
LAW; TWO FINED

German Karkhoff, Frank Johnson, Minneapolis Fined $10 and Cost Each

BOTH PLEADED GUILTY

One Caught Too Many Crappies and Other Had Two Lines in Water

Two Minneapolis men were this morning fined $10 and costs by Judge Lamonte P. Koop in municipal court when they pleaded guilty to violation of the game and fish laws. Charges were made by A. P. Cardle, deputy game warden. The infringement took place at Mission Lake.

Herman Karkhoff was charged with catching more than the limit of crappies in one day. He had 24 crappies in his possession.

Frank Johnson was charged with using more than one fishing line. Deputy Game Warden Cardle stated that he had sold the crappies and the $2.40 taken in from the sale was turned in to the state.

HEAVY RAINS
DO DAMAGE IN ALL ENGLAND

London, Jan. 31. — (UP)—Rains which fell over southern England during the violent gales of Friday and Saturday did much damage. Today parts of Shepperton, Halliford, Walton and Chertsey were flooded.

Unsettled weather continued in parts of Britain. Roofs were lifted by a gale in counties Tyrone and Donegal, Ireland, yesterday and today the unroofed houses contained a foot of snow which fell during the night.

TWO CHARGED WITH MURDER IN HOLDUP
OF A DRUG STORE

Okmulgee, Okla., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Skeet Adkins and Wilbert Underhill, charged with the murder of George Fee, who was shot to death in a drug store holdup, and two other prisoners escaped from the county jail here today.

The other prisoners were "Red" Gann and Duff Kennedy, held on nine indictments charging highway robbery and burglary.

The prisoners saved their way from their cells into the "run around" and then sawed the bars of an outside window. Tying blankets together, they lowered themselves to the ground.

8 PRISONERS
QUIETLY SLIP
FROM PRISON

USE INGENIOUS DEVICE TO OPEN THE ROW OF CELLS

AT THE BELLEVILLE, ILL., ST. CLAIR COUNTY JAIL

Belleville, Ill., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Opening a row of cells at the St. Clair county jail here last night by an ingenious device, eight prisoners quietly made their escape before some of the men in the same tier with them knew what had taken place.

The tier in which the men were kept was opened by a hook made from a coat hanger with which the device that controlled the locks on all the cells was opened.

After releasing themselves from their cells the eight prisoners sawed a bar, slid down a rope into the jail yard and climbed a high wall to freedom.

No transportation was commandeered and all indications pointed to a carefully planned escape.

Only the eight men participating in the plans went free. Others whose cells were opened had clustered about the window through which the eight had gone. Apparently all had their opportunity to participate in the delivery but preferred to serve out their sentences.

Cries of "jail break" from Paul Seale, East St. Louis, Ill., a trusty, shortly after the last of the eight had disappeared through the window gave authorities the first indication of any disorder in the prison. By the time they had run to the cell room and back down stairs to the yard, the men had disappeared.

Candid

A young corporal was drilling some men when one of them stepped out from the ranks and remarked in an angry voice: "You couldn't drill a company of ducks!"

Next morning he was brought before the colonel, who ordered him to be taken out and given ten minutes in which to change his mind.

When the time was up the man was brought in again and asked if he had altered his opinion. He replied in the affirmative, and was then asked:

"And what conclusion have you come to?"

"That he could not drill one duck, sir," was the quick, if somewhat astonishingly, reply.

Keep Busy

Nine-tenths of the miseries and vices of manhood proceed from idleness; with men of quick minds, to whom it is especially pernicious, this habit is commonly the fruit of many disappointments and schemes oft baffled; and men fall in their schemes not so much for want of strength as for their ill direction of it. The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers on a single object, can accomplish something. The drop of water by continued falling bores its passage through the hardest rock; the hasty torrent rushes over it with hideous roar, and leaves no trace behind.

It Must Have Been Good

"What are you asking for this sketch?" inquired Sir Joshua Reynolds of an old picture dealer.

"Twenty guineas, your honor," replied the dealer.

"Twenty pence, I suppose you mean," said Reynolds.

"No, sir," answered the dealer. "I would have taken twenty pence for it this morning; but, if you think it worth looking at, all the world will think it worth buying."

Sir Joshua Reynolds ordered the sketch sent home.—Market for Exchange.

Rewrote Overture

One of the operas of Rossini, the Italian composer, has an overture and a half, just because Rossini, like most men of all ages, dreaded to leave his bed. Writing in bed, he had partly completed an overture when he dropped off to sleep. The manuscript rolled to the floor and when Rossini awoke, he tried to recover the paper without leaving the bed. He found that he could not reach it, and, rather than get up, he started anew.

Honor Guest

PRESIDES AT INSTRUCTION

Banquet Served This Evening, Program to be Given at 9 P. M.

Mrs. Nina Smith, Worthy Grand Matron of Order of Eastern Star of the State of Minnesota, from Bemidji arrived in the city today and was the dinner guest at the home of Mrs. Mae Mills, 224 North Fifth street, who is the District Deputy Grand Matron of the Twenty-second District, O. E. S., which includes Woodland Chapter, Aitkin; Evergreen Chapter, Crosby; Orchid Chapter, Staples; Cloverleaf Chapter, Pine River; Verdale Chapter, Verndale; Alpha Chapter, Brainerd. This afternoon and evening Mrs. Smith is the guest of Alpha Chapter which is holding the annual School of Instruction of the District. A banquet will be served by the Episcopal Guild in the Masonic dining room, which promises to be very fine, with Mrs. Etta Golemboske and Mrs. Anna Ellison in charge of the kitchen and Mrs. R. A. Boise and Mrs. H. J. Carlson in charge of the dining room. The Masonic parlors have been prettily decorated by the Past Matron's club with Mrs. Mary Carlson as chairman.

At 9 o'clock the school will close, and the evening will be spent socially after the following program has been rendered:

Duet—Misses Jennie Beck and Esther Fogelstrom.
Solo—Wm. Anderson.
Selection—Tall Cedar orchestra.
Reading—Marjory Forsberg.
Selection—Male quartet, R. L. Geist, Harry Fullerton, E. A. Page, L. F. Hough.

The Tall Cedar orchestra composed of Melvin Carlson, Edward Crust, Jr., Ernest Crust, Gene Paine, Gust Lind and E. A. Page will also furnish music for the banquet at 6:30. Refreshments will be served by the following committee: Mrs. C. A. Stadlbauer, Mrs. J. F. Elkins, Mrs. W. W. Smythe, Mrs. A. A. Weidemann, Mrs. James Crust, Mrs. Christine Mahood, Mrs. F. E. Little, and the Misses Ruth and Marion Templeton.

Mrs. Irma Crust, Worthy Matron of Alpha chapter, assisted by the committees and the Past Matrons' club, have been working diligently training the new officers and preparing entertainment for so many members and visitors from the surrounding towns. This chapter is one of the many of the large organizations that has helped to put Brainerd on the map.

The different chapters of the district took part in the afternoon's program and this evening Evergreen chapter of Crosby will put on the initiatory work with the following officers:

Worthy Matron—Cora Ellingson.
Worthy Patron—Albert Humble.
Assistant Matron—Nettie Yernberg.
Secretary—Pearl Shannon.
Treasurer—Margaret Gulgren.
Chaplain—May Van Akin.
Marshal—Lydia Young.
Organist—Selma Ellingson.
Conductress—Florence Berg.
Assistant Conductress—Hattie Samways.

drawal of its foreign staff from all parts of the province.

Hongkong, Jan. 31.—The Chinese owned British mail steamer Seang Bee, en route to Hongkong from Singapore, wireless today for help following an attack by pirates.

The meagre wireless message reported the master and European passengers have been taken ashore by the pirates at Biassbay, near Moy, China.

It was reported that 100 pirates who had shipped as passengers seized the Seang Bee at sea on Thursday morning. The skipper and officers were placed under guard while the pirates proceeded with the robbing of Chinese passengers. At Biass Bay, the pirates were reported to have fled with their loot and five Chinese passengers, the latter to be held for ransom.

No amplification was received here of the report that European passengers had been taken ashore.

THREE MEN BURNED AT BOILER EXPLOSION AT ST. PAUL SHOP

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Three men were burned, two seriously, in an explosion at the Kenny Boiler works here today.

A 50-gallon barrel of asphaltum paint exploded and sprayed the burning liquid over them.

The men injured were:
Louis T. Kenny, manager.
Leo Fritz, laborer.
Mike McMorey, laborer.

Kenny and Fritz were the most seriously burned about the hands and face. All three were taken to hospitals.

U. S. ARMY MANEUVERS NEAR MEXICAN BORDER

Washington, Jan. 31.—(UP)—United States army maneuvers will be held in the Mexican border area in April, the United Press learned today. In addition to troops of the eighth corps area, most of the army air corps will participate.

War department officials deny that the maneuvers have any political significance or relation to the dispute with Mexico.

TRIAL OF 'FLAPPER BANDIT' POSTPONED

Georgetown, Tex., Jan. 31.—(UP)—The trial of Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, 19 year old "flapper bandit," today was postponed until March 7. Mrs. Rogers faces trial on a charge of arson in connection with the burning of a building at Round Rock the day before she robbed the Farmers' State Bank at Buda.

Following the arson trial, Mrs. Rogers will be tried on the bank robbery charge.

The postponement was granted today because of conflict with a murder trial set for this term of court.

Tumaco, Colombia, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The amphibian planes New York, San Francisco and San Antonio of the United States army's Pan-American flight squadron arrived here today from Buena Ventura.

Buena Ventura, Colombia, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The Detroit and St. Louis of the United States army's Pan-American flight squadron left today at 11 a. m. for Tumaco to join the other planes of the squadron.

All five planes started together Saturday but the Detroit and St. Louis turned back to France field, Panama, and took off again.

SEEK TO EXPEDITE FARM RELIEF ACTION IN THE HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The house rules committee acted today to expedite farm relief action in the lower legislative body.

A special rule was reported whereby debate on the McNary-Haugen bill would be limited to twelve hours.

Chairman Snell was doubtful as to exact time of offering the rule but indicated it would be next Monday. Speedy action on the great farmers' problem would follow.

COLLIER GOES AGROUND ON SHOAL

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Aground on a shoal in Vineyard Sound, the collier Anthony O'Boyle today was reported in need of assistance.

The craft grounded late Sunday while enroute from Norfolk, Va.

Because of a calm sea, the O'Boyle's crew was believed not in danger today, but it was reported the assistance of coast guardsmen would be necessary to refloat the boat.

Bridging Over the Years

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

ARTHUR RIVINGTON got off the train at the little village and looked about him, trying to feel at home. But he couldn't. There were the same houses. Among the people on the street he now and then saw a face which looked familiar to him; but he could not fit a name to its owner. He was surprised at the feeling of strangeness he had in the home of his boyhood. As a matter of fact the village had altered very little—the change was in Arthur.

He had been away for ten years—South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the South Sea Islands. He had been a youth, twenty-five, when he set out—he was returning a bronzed and rather prematurely worn man of thirty-five. But he was bringing his sheaves with him in the shape of a competence, amassed by means of a trading schooner. The active, strenuous productive years of his life had been passed amid surroundings and under conditions which had entered into his very soul and become, as it were, a part of himself.

"But I am a young man yet," he thought, "and can soon set myself to the key of the remembered harmony—if only I were sure of Jennie!" There it was, you see—there was a woman in the case. And ten years is a long time to ask a girl to wait. When they had kissed each other good-by Jennie Crawford had been nineteen, and now twenty-nine. But Arthur always thought of her just as he had seen her last, when they kissed each other over the garden gate, "with the one bird singing alone to its mate and the one star over the tower"; and many a night, borne on the long wash of Australian seas, had he lain upon the starlit deck and quoted Owen Meredith to that effect.

Jennie and Arthur had corresponded regularly until four months ago, when Jennie's letters suddenly ceased. In the remote island realm where Arthur had resigned he had not expected to get his mail regularly. Letters were dispatched by vessels which casually touched at the island, or by trading schooners which sometimes got caught in tropic storms and were never heard of any more. But an interval of four months was more than could reasonably be accounted for, and it was this which had decided Arthur to close out his business in Polynesia and go home before he had intended to go.

Arthur noticed a little crowd gathered about the door of the village church. Wedding bells rang out—they gave him a creepy sensation. He longed to ask questions of some of the passers-by, but feared to do so because of what the answer might be. At last he accosted a lounging villager and asked, "Is Mr. Benjamin Crawford still living?"

"Oh, yes," replied the villager, "but the old man is getting mighty feeble these days. That's his daughter who is being married today. A city chap with lots of money, they say."

This, then, was the reason of the cessation of Jennie's letters; this was his homecoming; his reward for years of struggle! With the same calm fortitude with which he had borne himself when once some Malay pirates had stripped him and taken him out to amuse themselves with his torture he walked toward the church.

The wedding guests were coming out now and there, framed in the door of the church, he saw a girl in bridal array leaning on the arm of a young man whose dress and manner proclaimed the bridegroom. And the girl beneath the veil and orange blossoms was Jennie as he remembered her when he parted from her ten years ago. He placed his hand against a tree for support. Then a bewildered came over him. It was Jennie—just as he remembered her—but different, nevertheless, in subtle way.

Then his eyes turned to the woman who walked behind the bride—a woman no longer in her first youth but beautiful still. She did not, as had the bride, fulfill the mental picture of Jennie Crawford which Arthur had carried with him all these years—but at the first glance he knew that she was Jennie. And the other one—the bride—who could she be, then? Had the tropic suns affected his head?

"Why, Arthur, had you forgotten little Carrie?" said Jennie later in the day, when she and the returned wanderer were bridging over the years and getting things straightened out. "She was nine years old when you went away—a gawky girl, but she improved when she grew up."

Yes, Arthur was obliged to confess that little Carrie had slipped from his mind. "She looks just as you used to look," said he.

"Oh, far prettier," cried Jennie. "Not half as pretty as you are now," replied Arthur.

It was some time before the mystery of the interrupted correspondence was cleared up. Letters, in the remote part of the world where Arthur had lived, used to arrive in batches which had collected at some regular postal station to be forwarded as infrequent opportunity occurred. It was found that one batch had gone down in a lost schooner, another had been left at the wrong island and the savages had used the stamps for decorative purposes; a third batch had arrived at Arthur's island two days after he had sailed away from it. It is quite needless to remark that Jennie and Arthur "lived happy ever after."

Mystery About Snow Pile Long Preserved

Some years ago at Minersville, in Schuylkill county, Pa., there was being operated the Wolf Creek washery. The business of the operators was to reclaim the immense banks of culm that have been deposited on the surface during the Civil war. With the aid of modern machinery they were able to obtain thousands of tons of marketable sizes of anthracite at the rate of about 2,000 tons a month.

These culm banks were more like mountains than refuse piles. In some instances they were 50 feet high and covered the surface for approximately a half mile. The culm was taken in conveyor lines to a breaker, where it was washed through revolving screens and the coal reclaimed.

One day in the month of June, when the thermometer registered from 90 to 100 degrees, the operators uncovered in the heart of one of the banks a large quantity of ice and snow. They reasoned that this deposit was covered with culm during the winter, and, thus protected from the air, had been preserved for about 44 years. It seemed almost incredible that such a condition was possible in the temperate zone, and yet no other theory seems satisfactory. The snow was protected, of course, from the elements by the tons of culm 50 feet high and hundreds of yards wide; and yet, if this theory is not tenable, then some scientist may offer a more convincing theory for its remarkable state of preservation.

Canary Islands Prize of Many Adventurers

The Canary Islands have the distinction of being the most bought-and-sold islands known to history. They were known to the ancients and named Canaria by Piny from "the multitude of large dogs that do there abound," Warren H. Miller relates in "All Around the Mediterranean." A French vessel was driven ashore there in 1334, and in 1490 Jean de Berthen court sailed from Rochelle to take possession, but the natives would have none of him, and he sold a bad bargain to a Spaniard. From then on these islands were sold and resold to various Spanish adventurers, all of whom had bad luck with the natives, until one, Parazza, finally sold them to the Spaniards. In 1476 a group of 1,000 Spanish soldiers set sail for the Canaries to reduce the islands to the glory of God, under Alonzo de Lugo, who completed his task in 1495.

The Value of Research

"Every application of science which results in lower production costs, through either a saving in labor or in raw materials, or which gives a new useful product or increases the use of old products, is directly beneficial to every man, woman and child living in the areas served by the industries making the improvement. The benefits extend even beyond that, they go to generations yet to come and to remote corners of the earth."

This quotation from the book, "What Price Progress?" by Hugh Farrell, explains briefly the value to the world of research in industry.

Throughout many years, scientific research has played an important part in the operations of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

In the petroleum industry, this Company has taken a leading part in reducing nebulous theories to acknowledged facts and in eliminating guess work from the manufacture of petroleum products.

Practically every major product manufactured by this Company is directly attributable to intensive research work, extending over long periods of time in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) laboratories.

The important role of science in the modern world is but dimly understood by the public. People who can remember the living conditions of fifty years ago, realize that spectacular changes have taken place, but few stop to think that practically all these changes can be traced to one source.

Back of every discovery and every invention that have contributed to the health and happiness of mankind, science has been at work.

Telephones, bathtubs, automobiles, radios, airplanes—all of the new comforts and pleasures that have been added to our life have been the result of research.

Science has been applied in industry to improve old products and create new ones, to devise better methods, to lower costs of production through savings in labor and raw materials. Practically everything you buy or use has more than one scientific chapter in the history of its development.

Scientists working in their laboratories, experimenting, studying known facts and exploring the unknown, have been responsible for the revolutionary changes that have made this world a more habitable place.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) acknowledges tribute to science. It believes that success in any business demands a broad knowledge of all underlying facts, and a constant pursuit of new facts.

Research work plays an important part in enabling the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to produce uniform, dependable products of the finest quality at the lowest possible cost.

EASTERN STAR SCHOOL HELD

Mrs. Nina Smith, Worthy Grand
Matron of the Order,
Honor Guest

PRESIDES AT INSTRUCTION

Banquet Served This Evening, Program to be Given at 9 P. M.

Mrs. Nina Smith, Worthy Grand Matron of Order of Eastern Star of the State of Minnesota, from Bemidji arrived in the city today and was the dinner guest at the home of Mrs. Mae Mills, 224 North Fifth street, who is the District Deputy Grand Matron of the Twenty-second District, O. E. S., which includes Woodland Chapter, Aitkin; Evergreen Chapter, Crosby; Orchid Chapter, Staples; Cloverleaf Chapter, Pine River; Verndale Chapter, Verndale; Alpha Chapter, Brainerd. This afternoon and evening Mrs. Smith is the guest of Alpha Chapter which is holding the annual School of Instruction of the District. A banquet will be served by the Episcopal Guild in the Masonic dining room, which promises to be very fine, with Mrs. Etta Golemboske and Mrs. Anna Ellison in charge of the kitchen and Mrs. R. A. Beise and Mrs. H. J. Carlson in charge of the dining room. The Masonic parlors have been prettily decorated by the Past Matrons' club with Mrs. Mary Carlson as chairman.

At 9 o'clock the school will close, and the evening will be spent socially after the following program has been rendered:

Duet—Misses Jennie Beck and Esther Fogelstrom.
Solo—Wm. Anderson.
Selection—Tall Cedar orchestra.
Reading—Marjory Forsberg.

The Tall Cedar orchestra composed of Melvin Carlson, Edward Crust, Jr., Ernest Crust, Gene Paine, Gust Lind and E. A. Page will also furnish music for the banquet at 6:30. Refreshments will be served by the following committee: Mrs. C. A. Stadlbauer, Mrs. J. F. Elkins, Mrs. W. W. Smythe, Mrs. A. A. Weidemann, Mrs. James Crust, Mrs. Christine Mahood, Mrs. F. E. Little, and the Misses Ruth and Marion Templeton.

Mrs. Irma Crust, Worthy Matron of Alpha chapter, assisted by the committees and the Past Matrons' club, have been working diligently training the new officers and preparing entertainment for so many members and visitors from the surrounding towns. This chapter is one of the many of the large organizations that has helped to put Brainerd on the map. The different chapters of the district took part in the afternoon's program and this evening Evergreen chapter of Crosby will put on the initiatory work with the following officers:

Worthy Matron—Cora Ellingson.
Worthy Patron—Albert Humble.
Assistant Matron—Nettie Yernberg.
Secretary—Pearl Shannon.
Treasurer—Margaret Gulgren.
Chaplain—May Van Akin.
Marshal—Lydia Young.
Organist—Selma Ellingson.
Conductress—Florence Berg.
Assistant Conductress—Hattie Samways.

Adah—Ardna Wladimiroff.
Esther—Martha Johnson.
Ruth—Lelia Lee.
Martha—Emalia Olson.

ST. CLOUD GRANITE CO. INCORPORATED

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The Rain-bow Granite company of Sacred Heart, Minn., today filed articles of incorporation for $75,000, with Secretary of State Mike Holm.

The incorporators are Gustav E. Stans, Carl J. Swanson and A. E. Stans, all of Sacred Heart.

Cans Test Drivers' Skill

When a man applies for a license to drive an automobile in Duffield, New Zealand, he is taken to a small yard dotted with tall cans and ordered to steer an irregular course through them to the opposite side. This accomplished successfully, he is bidden to repeat his trip in reverse gear, says the Dearborn Independent.

Beginning of the End

When you have reached the period of existence when you have become unbiassed, unprejudiced and open-minded, then you will hear members of your family say that all has been done for you that science knows, and the papers will give an account of your funeral rites within a short time. —Pikens County (Ala.) Early Use of Spoons

Ordinary spoons were known to the Egyptians, who made them of wood, stone, ivory and bronze, and in Biblical times we may read that Moses made golden spoons for the tabernacle. Silver spoons have been found in the buried cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum.

drawal of its foreign staff from all parts of the province.

Hongkong, Jan. 31.—The Chinese owned British mail steamer Seang Bee, en route to Hongkong from Singapore, wireless today for help following an attack by pirates.

The meagre wireless message reported the master and European passengers have been taken ashore by the pirates at Biasshay, near Moy, China.

It was reported that 100 pirates who had shipped as passengers seized the Seang Bee at sea on Thursday morning. The skipper and officers were placed under guard while the pirates proceeded with the robbing of Chinese passengers. At Biass Bay, the pirates were reported to have fled with their loot and five Chinese passengers, the latter to be held for ransom.

No application was received here of the report that European passengers had been taken ashore.

THREE MEN BURNED AT BOILER EXPLOSION AT ST. PAUL SHOP

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Three men were burned, two seriously, in an explosion at the Kenny Boiler works here today.

A 50-gallon barrel of asphaltum paint exploded and sprayed the burning liquid over them.

The men injured were:
Louis T. Kenny, manager.
Leo Fritz, laborer.
Mike McMorey, laborer.

Kenny and Fritz were the most seriously burned about the hands and face. All three were taken to hospitals.

U. S. ARMY MANEUVERS NEAR MEXICAN BORDER

Washington, Jan. 31.—(UP)—United States army maneuvers will be held in the Mexican border area in April, the United Press learned today. In addition to troops of the eighth corps area, most of the army air corps will participate.

War department officials deny that the maneuvers have any political significance or relation to the dispute with Mexico.

TRIAL OF 'FLAPPER BANDIT' POSTPONED

Georgetown, Tex., Jan. 31.—(UP)—The trial of Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, 19 year old "flapper bandit," today was postponed until March 7. Mrs. Rogers faces trial on a charge of arson in connection with the burning of a building at Round Rock the day before she robbed the Farmers' State Bank at Buda.

Following the arson trial, Mrs. Rogers will be tried on the bank robbery charge.

The postponement was granted today because of conflict with a murder trial set for this term of court.

AMPHIBIAN PLANES NOW IN COLOMBIA

Tumaco, Colombia, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The amphibian planes New York, San Francisco and San Antonio of the United States army's Pan-American flight squadron arrived here today from Buena Ventura.

Buena Ventura, Colombia, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The Detroit and St. Louis of the United States army's Pan-American flight squadron left today at 11 a. m. for Tumaco to join the other planes of the squadron.

All five planes started together Saturday but the Detroit and St. Louis turned back to France field, Panama, and took off again.

SEEK TO EXPEDITE FARM RELIEF ACTION IN THE HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 31.—(UP)—The house rules committee acted today to expedite farm relief action in the lower legislative body.

A special rule was reported whereby debate on the McNary-Haugen bill would be limited to twelve hours.

Chairman Snell was doubtful as to exact time of offering the rule but indicated it would be next Monday. Speedy action on the great farmers' problem would follow.

COLLIER GOES AGROUND ON SHOAL

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Jan. 31.—(UP)—Aground on a shoal in Vineyard Sound, the collier Anthony O'Boyle today was reported in need of assistance.

The craft grounded late Sunday while enroute from Norfolk, Va.

Because of a calm sea, the O'Boyle's crew was believed not in danger today, but it was reported the assistance of coast guardsmen would be necessary to refloat the boat.

Bridging Over the Years

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

ARTHUR RIVINGTON got off the train at the little village and looked about him, trying to feel at home. But he couldn't. There were the same houses. Among the people on the street he now and then saw a face which looked familiar to him; but he could not fit a name to its owner. He was surprised at the feeling of strangeness he had in the home of his boyhood. As a matter of fact the village had altered very little—the change was in Arthur.

He had been away for ten years—South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the South Sea Islands. He had been a youth, twenty-five, when he set out—he was returning a bronzed and rather prematurely worn man of thirty-five. But he was bringing his sheaves with him in the shape of a competence, amassed by means of a trading schooner. The active, strenuous productive years of his life had been passed amid surroundings and under conditions which had entered into his very soul and become, as it were, a part of himself.

"But I am a young man yet," he thought, "and can soon set myself to the key of the remembered harmony—if only I were sure of Jennie!" There it was, you see—there was a woman in the case. And ten years is a long time to ask a girl to wait. When they had kissed each other good-by Jennie Crawford had been nineteen, and now twenty-nine. But Arthur always thought of her just as he had seen her last, when they kissed each other over the garden gate, "with the one bird singing alone to its mate and the one star over the tower"; and many a night, borne on the long wash of Australian seas, had he lain upon the starlit deck and quoted Owen Meredith to that effect.

Jennie and Arthur had corresponded regularly until four months ago, when Jennie's letters suddenly ceased. In the remote island realm where Arthur had resigned he had not expected to get his mail regularly. Letters were dispatched by vessels which casually touched at the island, or by trading schooners which sometimes got caught in tropic storms and were never heard of any more. But an interval of four months was more than could reasonably be accounted for, and it was this which had decided Arthur to close out his business in Polynesia and go home before he had intended to go.

Arthur noticed a little crowd gathered about the door of the village church. Wedding bells rang out—they gave him a creepy sensation. He longed to ask questions of some of the passers-by, but feared to do so because of what the answer might be. At last he accosted a lounging villager and asked, "Is Mr. Benjamin Crawford still living?"

"Oh, yes," replied the villager, "but the old man is getting mighty feeble these days. That's his daughter who is being married today. A city chap with lots of money, they say."

This, then, was the reason of the cessation of Jennie's letters; this was his homecoming; his reward for years of struggle! With the same calm fortitude with which he had borne himself when once some Malay pirates had stripped him and taken him out to amuse themselves with his torture he walked toward the church.

The wedding guests were coming out now and there, framed in the door of the church, he saw a girl in bridal array leaning on the arm of a young man whose dress and manner proclaimed the bridegroom. And the girl beneath the veil and orange blossoms was Jennie as he remembered her when he parted from her ten years ago. He placed his hand against a tree for support. Then a bewildered came over him. It was Jennie—just as he remembered her—but different, nevertheless, in subtle way.

Then his eyes turned to the woman who walked behind the bride—a woman no longer in her first youth but beautiful still. She did not, as had the bride, fulfill the mental picture of Jennie Crawford which Arthur had carried with him all these years—but at the first glance he knew that she was Jennie. And the other one—the bride—who could she be, then? Had the tropic suns affected his head?

"Why, Arthur, had you forgotten little Carrie?" said Jennie later in the day, when she and the returned wanderer were bridling over the years and getting things straightened out. "She was nine years old when you went away—a gawky girl, but she improved when she grew up."

Yes, Arthur was obliged to confess that little Carrie had slipped from his mind. "She looks just as you used to look," said he.

"Oh, far prettier," cried Jennie. "Not half as pretty as you are now," replied Arthur.

It was some time before the mystery of the interrupted correspondence was cleared up. Letters, in the remote part of the world where Arthur had lived, used to arrive in batches which had collected at some regular postal station to be forwarded as infrequent opportunity occurred. It was found that one batch had gone down in a lost schooner, another had been left at the wrong island and the savages had used the stamps for decorative purposes; a third batch had arrived at Arthur's island two days after he had sailed away from it. It is quite needless to remark that Jennie and Arthur "lived happy ever after."

Mystery About Snow Pile Long Preserved

Some years ago at Minersville, in Schuylkill county, Pa., there was being operated the Wolf Creek washery. The business of the operators was to reclaim the immense banks of culm that have been deposited on the surface during the Civil war. With the aid of modern machinery they were able to obtain thousands of tons of marketable sizes of anthracite at the rate of about 2,000 tons a month.

These culm banks were more like mountains than refuse piles. In some instances they were 50 feet high and covered the surface for approximately a half mile. The culm was taken in conveyor lines to a breaker, where it was washed through revolving screens and the coal reclaimed.

One day in the month of June, when the thermometer registered from 90 to 100 degrees, the operators uncovered in the heart of one of the banks a large quantity of ice and snow. They reasoned that this deposit was covered with culm during the winter, and, thus protected from the elements by the tons of culm 50 feet high and hundreds of yards wide; and yet, if this theory is not tenable, then some scientist may offer a more convincing theory for its remarkable state of preservation.

Canary Islands Prize of Many Adventurers

The Canary islands have the distinction of being the most bought-and-sold islands known to history. They were known to the ancients and named Canaria by Piny from "the multitude of large dogs that do there abound," Warren H. Miller relates in "All Around the Mediterranean." A French vessel was driven ashore there in 1334, and in 1400 Jean de Berthen-court sailed from Rochelle to take possession, but the natives would have none of him, and he sold a bad bargain to a Spaniard. From then on these islands were sold and resold to various Spanish adventurers, all of whom had bad luck with the natives, until one, Parazza, finally sold them to the Spanish crown. In 1476 a group of 1,000 Spanish soldiers set sail for the Canaries to reduce the islands to the glory of God, under Alonzo de Lugo, who completed his task in 1495.

The Value of Research

"Every application of science which results in lower production costs, through either a saving in labor or in raw materials, or which gives a new useful product or increases the use of old products, is directly beneficial to every man, woman and child living in the areas served by the industries making the improvement. The benefits extend even beyond that, they go to generations yet to come and to remote corners of the earth."

This quotation from the book, "What Price Progress?" by Hugh Farrell, explains briefly the value to the world of research in industry.

Throughout many years, scientific research has played an important part in the operations of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

In the petroleum industry, this Company has taken a leading part in reducing nebulous theories to acknowledged facts and in eliminating guess work from the manufacture of petroleum products.

Practically every major product manufactured by this Company is directly attributable to intensive research work, extending over long periods of time in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) laboratories.

The important role of science in the modern world is but dimly understood by the public. People who can remember the living conditions of fifty years ago, realize that spectacular changes have taken place, but few stop to think that practically all these changes can be traced to one source.

Back of every discovery and every invention that have contributed to the health and happiness of mankind, science has been at work.

Telephones, bathtubs, automobiles, radios, airplanes—all of the new comforts and pleasures that have been added to our life have been the result of research.

Science has been applied in industry to improve old products and create new ones, to devise better methods, to lower costs of production through savings in labor and raw materials. Practically everything you buy or use has more than one scientific chapter in the history of its development.

Scientists working in their laboratories, experimenting, studying known facts and exploring the unknown, have been responsible for the revolutionary changes that have made this world a more habitable place.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) acknowledges tribute to science. It believes that success in any business demands a broad knowledge of all underlying facts, and a constant pursuit of new facts.

Research work plays an important part in enabling the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to produce uniform, dependable products of the finest quality at the lowest possible cost.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is constantly applying science to the big business of serving in a big way the thirty million people of the Middle West.

FOOD AS A TOPIC

WE don't mind taking food as a topic for a story, but we do object to reading a lot of free advertising about New York restaurants. It seems that a wave of such publicity is emanating from New York in the guise of newspaper and magazine stories.

Talk about the small town bragging about the banquet at its leading hotel. It's not to be compared with some of the stuff written about New York hotels, restaurants and cafes.

If sports are investigated and a furore created in New York about too much free stuff written about hockey, we wonder that some one doesn't investigate this dope written about eating houses.

As we took up our Sunday paper we noticed a story by O. O. McIntyre. He led off with these paragraphs:

"Colonel George Bailey, of Texas, one of the ablest of newspaper parographers, once told me there was one unflinching bell-ringer as a paragraph topic. That is food.

"In many ways food is the lodestone of our pleasant memories. Last night I was back tracking over visits to here and there and in every instance there was a palate tickle."

That's very good as far as it goes, but McIntyre then follows with a free ad of four and a half inches of good space describing the best grub he had sampled at some score or more of eating houses throughout the United States and Mexico. In each case the particular line of food and the name of the eating house is mentioned.

Not content with that, he copies a list recently compiled by George Jean Nathan, "an expert in gustatory exploration in New York." Then obviously to "boost" the New York eating houses, McIntyre says: "I think they're worth preserving by those who come or expect to come to New York."

And George Jean Nathan goes through a list of some forty odd cafes of New York and outlines what he considers the best dish turned out by each. Mr. Nathan is undoubtedly sincere in his efforts. To get at the best on any bill of fare one must sample the "whole works" and then choose. The gastronomical labors of Nathan were undoubtedly severe and painstaking, but why give the chop house a free ad in your story and why have it repeated and given further free publicity?

And then to cap the climax, we read our wife's copy of the February issue of Vogue, a fashion journal published by Conde Nast, of New York, and there on page 45 we came upon another outburst of restaurant witeups.

And the writer grows enthusiastic about his subject. He describes each cafe in detail, as it were, gives sample menus, pictures are added of the various eating places. The whole story should be labelled a plain advertisement from start to finish.

If eating stories, where to eat and what and when and why, are to become the fashion, we suggest that the United Commercial Travelers official organ stir up its thousands of travelingsmen to record their impressions of eats at the hotels they make. These boys are unflinching barometers. But like a barometer they record the high levels and the low levels of gastronomical explorations.

INSPIRATION AND PERSPIRATION

ACCORDING to F. R. Buckley in Adventure, whose articles on writing we read recently, writing is a long labor. We mean the writing of short stories, long stories, novels, etc., which tend to curvy a literary flavor. It seems that inspiration and perspiration are closely allied.

In one way or another writing is arduous labor. Some authors work physically, writing and rewriting, polishing and repolishing; casting and recasting; others sit down, doing nothing for months at a time save calling themselves lazy devils, slack-backed good-for-nothings, self-indulgent blighters and similar petty names, until the stuff that has been fermenting below the surface all the time bursts forth and seems to write itself.

It doesn't matter which mode is used—they are equally hard, continues Buckley. Nothing is born without pain. And there is more pain in this business of writing than meets the eye—especially the eye of the poor folk who think authorship is an affair of an adventure, pen, ink, and a correspondence course.

For while a story may take a month, a year, ten years to write, and block all other activity, while it is being written, the author's stomach demands its tribute at the usual times. He must finance himself for his stock-in-trade can not be inventoried by a banker; obviously, while so doing, he must manufacture his product, for if he fails no one else can do it; and at last he must go forth and be his own salesman.

Newspaper work is a sort of writing, it's recording the obvious, writing things that have occurred. Confined to the truth, the writer cannot permit his fancies to wander. A small town checks up every deviation from the straight and narrow path.

Fiction writers, on the other hand, can adapt real incidents to suit their purpose. They can elaborate and theorize and argue.

We remember seeing our friend Sinclair Lewis at work grinding out fiction on his typewriter, comfortably ensconced near his cabin on Big Pelican lake in the vicinity of Breezy Point Lodge. All that Lewis desired was to be let alone while he worked out the plot of his story. Like a painter at work on a portrait, Lewis had previously thought about his story, had sketched it out and when he wrote it was with a definite plan in view.

REGARDING PROTECTION OF DEER

SENTIMENT in the north country is veering to greater protection of our deer.

For instance, the annual meeting of the Community club of Park Rapids developed a very noticeable change in local sentiment regarding the deer hunting law for this state, says the Park Rapids Enterprise.

Two years ago when members of the club took a ballot on the "one buck law" there was not a vote recorded favoring the measure. At the meeting Friday, evening the vote stood practically 50-50 on the proposition.

The recent hunting season made it very plain that the deer need greater protection than they have had, and it may be the best plan to try out in Minnesota the "buck law" that is being used to build up the deer herds in other states.

FREE the clutch when starting your car on cold mornings, and the starting motor, says an expert, will not be called upon to turn the transmission gears in cold grease.

Talk About Oil Shortage Scored by Govt. Expert

That there will be fuel for the family flivver, at moderate prices, for many decades is the confident view of Harry H. Hill, chief petroleum engineer, United States Bureau of Mines. Interviewed by the New York Times, Mr. Hill said:

"It will be possible to obtain plenty of petroleum from drilled wells for many years to come and after the exhaustion of this supply coal and shales will meet all requirements, according to Harry H. Hill, Chief Petroleum Engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines.

Harry H. Hill, Chief of Petroleum Division, U. S. Bureau of Mines.

He sees no reason for worry over a possible shortage of motor fuel.

"Most of the petroleum thus far has come from limited areas within the United States," Mr. Hill said.

"Even from these, only a small part has been taken. Oil in pools, with gas pressure capable of lifting it, is but a little of all the oil. Even from the best pools recovery by the old methods is small—a half at best, often a sixth, a seventh or a tenth.

"But a considerable part of what remains can be recovered by methods now established as technically and economically practicable. These will be improved as occasion demands. Mining oil, and the production of it from coal and shales, is entirely possible. If we need to fall back on these resources, we are ready. But for a long time exploration, drilling and larger recoveries are likely to suffice."

Artificial Pressure Needed
Mr. Hill said that gas pressure lifts oil in wells, but that much is left sticking to the sands. Artificial restoration of pressure with gas, air or water, and the use of chemicals to wash the oil away from the sands, would greatly increase recoveries, he said. He explained that escaping gas carried off much of the oil, which formerly was lost but now is saved, and that great progress has been made in shutting out water and so increasing the recovery of oil.

"Early operators," Mr. Hill continued, "gathered information about their experiences, but latterly they co-operate. Our engineers get logs of wells, from which helpful information is placed at the service of producers. Geologists and engineers, once derided by 'practical' oil men, are becoming guides and inventors."

He then told how oil sands are mined in France by soaking the oil out of the sands by driving tunnels and from these pushing perforated pipes out to soak up the oil as a sponge would. Some companies are installing the process in this country, convinced it is practicable and profitable, he said.

Explains European Methods
"In Europe," he went on, "much is being done to distill oil from coal. But extracting it from shales is more appealing. Scotland has worked its shales for seventy-five years. We have vastly greater and richer deposits here. There is no doubt of the possibility of extraction; just a question of cost. Scotch shales are producing twenty-five gallons per ton; we can get much more. Scotch seams are 3½ to 10 feet thick; ours are many times that. Shale resources are so vast as to insure against deficiency in oil, once the price is high enough."

"But that may be a long time ahead. Ben E. Lindsey, of the Bureau's Station in Oklahoma, is sure that exploration, better recoveries, better utilization, deeper drilling, would furnish oil for 25 to 50 years, if it could all be taken out in that time. That will be impossible in actual operation. There will be shortages, when oil from shales will be needed to supplement that from the wells. Meanwhile, Federal and State Governments and the industry are co-operating in an astonishing range of investigations and studies, looking to larger recoveries, prevention of waste, protection against fire and the use of lower grade distillates."

Reginald Denny "Take It From Me"

If you would laugh until you quiver and palpitate, see Reginald Denny's latest farce. It is entitled "Take It From Me," and it is playing now at the Lyceum theatre.

Denny, star of many excellent farces, is at his very best in this light and frothy comedy, and dashes through it with an air of serious abandon that would ring laughs from the most solemn of men.

Blanche MehaFFEY graces the picture as the feminine lead.

How Shall I Get Rest?

You ask when the nerves are on edge and you cannot sleep—"Feed the Nerves with Dr. A. W. Chase Tonic Pills" is the answer.

What is more distressing than to toss and roll in bed unable to sleep. The next day you are tired, nervous, irritable and everything seems to go wrong. Sleeplessness is nature's first warning that the nerves are exhausted. With loss of sleep comes further debility. Day by day the nerve force is further depleted until you face nervous collapse and a complete breakdown of the health. You become melancholy and discouraged. The future seems to hold no happiness for you. Everything worries you. But what a change comes over you when you supply new life and vigor to the nervous system by using DR. A. W. CHASE TONIC PILLS.

Gradually you find yourself sleeping better and feeling better and soon you realize that you are on the road to health and strength, to better efficiency in your daily work and the enjoyment of living.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

Jan. 29, 1902

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. White of Fargo are in the city visiting with Mr. White's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. White. They intend to leave soon for an extended European trip.

Pailey Carmichael and Harold Smith left this afternoon for Duluth where they will meet E. M. Brown. The three will do some work for the Northern Pacific at that point.

Miss Blanche Entriiken returned from Staples this afternoon where she had been visiting for some time.

Mrs. W. H. Bondy slipped off the porch yesterday afternoon and sprained her ankle quite badly.

Miss Ella Foltz of Duluth is in the city visiting with her sister, Mrs. Ed. Orth.

Parker and Topping have renewed their lease for the Northern Pacific Foundry for another five years dating from Dec. 1, 1901. The renewal of this lease will start the company out on a term, which when completed, will have run 21 years. This makes a total of 16 years which Parker and Topping have been the lessees of the Northern Pacific Foundry in this city. From time to time the capacity of this large industry has been increased until at the present time the firm employs 150 men.

The contract which Parker and Topping enter into with the Northern Pacific Railway Co. is to furnish all of the latter's iron and brass castings and other metals. The prices under this contract are adjusted every six months, the first day of December and the first day of June.

FOOD AS A TOPIC

WE don't mind taking food as a topic for a story, but we do object to reading a lot of free advertising about New York restaurants. It seems that a wave of such publicity is emanating from New York in the guise of newspaper and magazine stories. Talk about the small town bragging about the banquet at its leading hotel. It's not to be compared with some of the stuff written about New York hotels, restaurants and cafes.

If sports are investigated and a furore created in New York about too much free stuff written about hockey, we wonder that some one doesn't investigate this dope written about eating houses.

As we took up our Sunday paper we noticed a story by O. O. McIntyre. He led off with these paragraphs:

"Colonel George Bailey, of Texas, one of the ablest of newspaper paragraphers, once told me there was one unfailing beller as a paragraph topic. That is food.

"In many ways food is the lodestone of our pleasant memories. Last night I was back tracking over visits to here and there and in every instance there was a palate tickle."

That's very good as far as it goes, but McIntyre then follows with a free ad of four and a half inches of good space describing the best grub he had sampled at some score or more of eating houses throughout the United States and Mexico. In each case the particular line of food and the name of the eating house is mentioned.

Not content with that, he copies a list recently compiled by George Jean Nathan, "an expert in gustatory exploration in New York." Then obviously to "boost" the New York eating houses, McIntyre says: "I think they're worth preserving by those who come or expect to come to New York."

And George Jean Nathan goes through a list of some forty odd cafes of New York and outlines what he considers the best dish turned out by each. Mr. Nathan is undoubtedly sincere in his efforts. To get at the best on any bill of fare one must sample the "whole works" and then choose. The gastronomical labors of Nathan were undoubtedly severe and painstaking, but why give the chop house a free ad in your story and why have it repeated and given further free publicity?

And then to cap the climax, we read our wife's copy of the February issue of Vogue, a fashion journal published by Conde Nast, of New York, and there on page 45 we came upon another outburst of restaurant witeups.

And the writer grows enthusiastic about his subject. He describes each cafe in detail, as it were, gives sample menus, pictures are added of the various eating places. The whole story should be labelled a plain advertisement from start to finish.

If eating stories, where to eat and what and when and why, are to become the fashion, we suggest that the United Commercial Travelers official organ stir up its thousands of travelingmen to record their impressions of eats at the hotels they make. These boys are unfailing barometers. But like a barometer they record the high levels and the low levels of gastronomical explorations.

INSPIRATION AND PERSPIRATION

ACCORDING to F. R. Buckley in Adventure, whose articles on writing we read recently, writing is a long labor. We mean the writing of short stories, long stories, novels, etc., which tend to curvy a literary flavor. It seems that inspiration and perspiration are closely allied.

In one way or another writing is arduous labor. Some authors work physically, writing and rewriting, polishing and repolishing; casting and recasting; others sit down, doing nothing for months at a time save calling themselves lazy devils, slack-backed good-for-nothings, self-indulgent blighters and similar petty names, until the stuff that has been fermenting below the surface all the time bursts forth and seems to write itself.

It doesn't matter which mode is used—they are equally hard, continues Buckley. Nothing is born without pain. And there is more pain in this business of writing than meets the eye—especially the eye of the poor folk who think authorship is an affair of an adventure, pen, ink, and a correspondence course.

For while a story may take a month, a year, ten years to write, and block all other activity, while it is being written, the author's stomach demands its tribute at the usual times. He must finance himself for his stock-in-trade can not be inventoried by a banker; obviously, while so doing, he must manufacture his product, for if he fails no one else can do it; and at last he must go forth and be his own salesman.

Newspaper work is a sort of writing, it's recording the obvious, writing things that have occurred. Confined to the truth, the writer cannot permit his fancies to wander. A small town checks up every deviation from the straight and narrow path.

Fiction writers, on the other hand, can adapt real incidents to suit their purpose. They can elaborate and theorize and argue.

We remember seeing our friend Sinclair Lewis at work grinding out fiction on his typewriter, comfortably ensconced near his cabin on Big Pelican Lake in the vicinity of Breezy Point Lodge. All that Lewis desired was to be let alone while he worked out the plot of his story. Like a painter at work on a portrait, Lewis had previously thought about his story, had sketched it out and when he wrote it was with a definite plan in view.

REGARDING PROTECTION OF DEER

SENTIMENT in the north country is veering to greater protection of our deer.

For instance, the annual meeting of the Community club of Park Rapids developed a very noticeable change in local sentiment regarding the deer hunting law for this state, says the Park Rapids Enterprise.

Two years ago when members of the club took a ballot on the "one buck law" there was not a vote recorded favoring the measure. At the meeting Friday, evening the vote stood practically 50-50 on the proposition.

The recent hunting season made it very plain that the deer need greater protection than they have had, and it may be the best plan to try out in Minnesota the "buck law" that is being used to build up the deer herds in other states.

FREE the clutch when starting your car on cold mornings, and the starting motor, says an expert, will not be called upon to turn the transmission gears in cold grease.

Talk About Oil Shortage
Scored by Govt. Expert

That there will be fuel for the family flivver, at moderate prices, for many decades is the confident view of Harry H. Hill, chief petroleum engineer, United States Bureau of Mines. Interviewed by the New York Times, Mr. Hill said:

"It will be possible to obtain plenty of petroleum from drilled wells for many years to come and after the exhaustion of this supply coal and shales will meet all requirements, according to Harry H. Hill, Chief Petroleum Engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines.

Harry H. Hill, Chief of Petroleum Division, U. S. Bureau of Mines.

He sees no reason for worry over a possible shortage of motor fuel.

"Most of the petroleum thus far has come from limited areas within the United States," Mr. Hill said. "Even from these, only a small part has been taken. Oil in pools with gas pressure capable of lifting it, is but a little of all the oil. Even from the best pools recovery by the old methods is small—a half at best, often a sixth, a seventh or a tenth.

"But a considerable part of what remains can be recovered by methods now established as technically and economically practicable. These will be improved as occasion demands. Mining oil, and the production of it from coal and shales, is entirely possible. If we need to fall back on these resources, we are ready. But for a long time

Artificial Pressure Needed
Mr. Hill said that gas pressure lifts oil in wells, but that much is left sticking to the sands. Artificial restoration of pressure with gas, air or water, and the use of chemicals to wash the oil away from the sands, would greatly increase recoveries, he said. He explained that escaping gas carried off much of the oil, which formerly was lost but now is saved, and that great progress has been made in shutting out water and so increasing the recovery of oil.

"Early operators," Mr. Hill continued, "guarded information about their experiences, but latterly they co-operate. Our engineers get logs of wells, from which helpful information is placed at the service of producers. Geologists and engineers, once derided by 'practical' oil men, are becoming guides and inventors."

He then told how oil sands are mined in France by soaking the oil out of the sands by driving tunnels and from these pushing perforated pipes out to soak up the oil as a sponge would. Some companies are installing the process in this country, convinced it is practicable and profitable, he said.

Explains European Methods

"In Europe," he went on, "much is being done to distill oil from coal. But extracting it from shales is more appealing. Scotland has worked its shales for seventy-five years. We have vastly greater and richer deposits here. There is no doubt of the possibility of extraction; just a question of cost. Scotch shales are producing twenty-five gallons per ton; we can get much more. Scotch seams are 3½ to 10 feet thick; ours are many times that. Shale resources are so vast as to insure against deficiency in oil, once the price is high enough.

"But that may be a long time ahead. Ben E. Lindsley, of the Bureau's Station in Oklahoma, is sure that exploration, better recoveries, better utilization, deeper drilling, would furnish oil for 25 to 50 years, if it could all be taken out in that time. That will be impossible in actual operation. There will be shortages, when oil from shales will be needed to supplement that from the wells. Meanwhile, Federal and State Governments and the industry are co-operating in an astonishing range of investigations and studies, looking to larger recoveries, prevention of waste, protection against fire and the use of lower grade distillates."

Reginald Denny "Take It From Me"

If you would laugh until you quiver and palpitate, see Reginald Denny's latest farce. It is entitled "Take It From Me," and it is playing now at the Lyceum theatre.

Denny, star of many excellent farces, is at his very best in this light and frothy comedy, and dashes through it with an air of serious abandon that would ring laughs from the most solemn of men.

Blanche Mehaffey graces the picture as the feminine lead.

Winsome Fashions for Little Folks

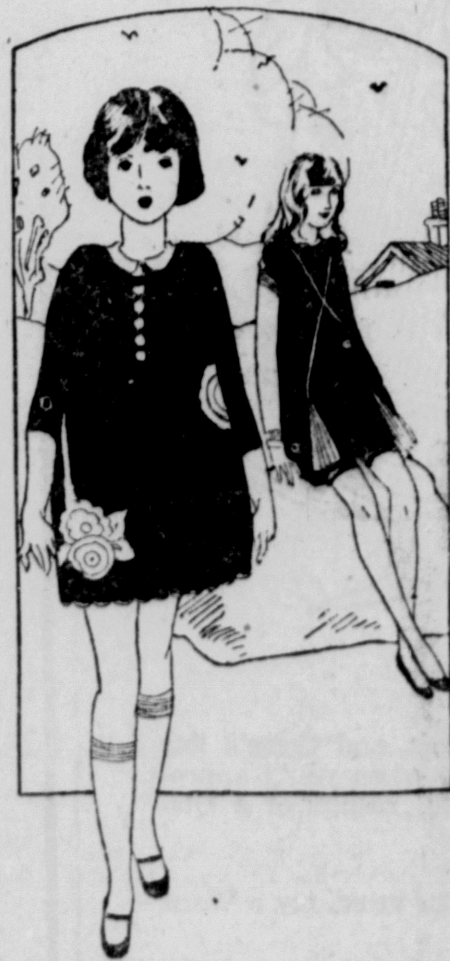

Simpler Models Vie With Gay, Bouffant Frocks to Delight Sub-Deb.

At this time of year every woman of fashion and every other woman who is the mother of girls, big or little, is concerned with the wardrobe of her children. It is a matter of moment, the outfit that is being prepared; perhaps as important as the question of dress will ever in youth present, says a fashion authority in the New York Times. That is, from the juvenile point of view, which is one of more sophistication than perhaps the girls of a former generation knew; and every budding belle of today learns soon all about her type and what is the mode and what she prefers. Comparisons are potent factors, and the feminine experience of rivalry comes early to stimulate ambition and to prompt the young lady in making her decisions. Not to be in style is something not to be endured, and pretty clothes were long ago found to be the most direct way to the heart of a girl.

Styles for children reflect in a measure those for their elders and in some ways the frocks that little girls are wearing are in some features really miniature models copied after those in the collections of both French and American designers. They are more feminine, with full gathered, plaited or tiered skirts; new kinds of sleeves, new necklines, much shirring, flouncing, needlework and fine detail, all of which contributes to a dainty finished quality in dress. That the manner of dressing a girl from babyhood to her teens has changed with the years is evident in the fashions.

The well-dressed young girl of today is neither as much of a baby nor as mature and overdressed as one in varying former years. She is simply different, illustrating different standards and conventions. Even a tiny girl is not now beruffled and beribboned in frocks that were overelaborated with lace and embroidery. Simplicity is apparent in good style and good taste, though it is often a costly simplicity. Clothes of the better sort are handmade if they are of light fabrics, and almost all sorts have at least a touch of needlework. Some of the newest and most attractive things in soft frocks for girls from the age of five to fifteen and more are much embroidered in one way and another—fine French embroidery, Italian drawwork combined with embroidery and the present needlework patterns which are so strikingly decorative.

White for Midwinter Season.
Much white is shown for the midwinter season, much all-white in both dresses and wraps, and some that is ornamented with needlework in the gayest colors. Crewel embroideries done in the patterns from the Balkan states, together with cross-stitch and hemstitching in color, are all shown on the season's models, in both white and in colors. Colors in the clothes for children forecast something of the styles for a season ahead, an assortment of the most lovely shades. These are very important, for they present some distinct achievements in the art of dyeing and are known by names that are most intriguing. Not any one color or even a certain few are conspicuously fashionable, for they are many.

For winter the browns, reds, blues and greens in numerous new shades are shown, with perhaps more brown and red than any others in response to the needs of the season. Wood brown, seal, tobacco, snuff and the light shades that are known as acorn, bark, pigskin, sirup, sawdust and polo tan are much used for both the one-piece frocks, suits and coats. In red there are many shades—burgundy, bordeaux, claret, Indian, troubadour and lobster. There are forest, spruce, fairway, almond sage, mignon and lido green, and festive shades of different sorts known as marigold, heart of melon, meadow pink, sunbloss, bougain, parakeet and crocus. Blue appears to be having a revival in clothes for children as for grown-ups, and most lovely shades are shown under the titles of bluebird, Italian turquoise, crayon, Flemish blue, French blue, glacier, and for practical frocks, radio, sindbad, sailor and dark navy blue.

Shops, particularly those that deal most in unusual things for children, are offering as the top note of the season the smocked frock for girls of all sizes. It is usually in one piece, with the yoke, girdle and cuffs fitted by the stitching, which is done in the same or in a contrasting color. A dark-blue crepe de chine for a girl of ten is smocked in scarlet floss, forming a yoke both at the neck and at the waist to a line over the hips. Below the fullness of the skirt is laid in narrow plaits and the wide sleeves smocked at the wrist are left to ruffle over the hand. This model, made in brown, green, tan and in red, is a practical, comfortable and always chic little frock that is suitable for many occasions. In the pretty light shades or in white, smocked in colors, sometimes with embroidery introduced, it serves charmingly for dancing school, the matinee and many informal daytime parties.

Jersey for Everyday Frock.
Jersey is the answer to the everyday frock for a girl of almost any age and, this season, is much used for very little ones. In the smallest sizes it is usually cut in one piece, rather roomy, with shirring at the neck and the wrists of full sleeves. Bloomers made of the same goods are made to just peep below the dress. Dresses for larger girls are more complex, with inlays and sections of material, either the same or in a contrast. Plaids are very good this season, not as much the large fancy plaids as the traditional tartans used alone or combined with plain goods.

A stylish little everyday frock for a girl between the years of eight and twelve is made of the new checked and plain velveteen. A straight jumper blouse of the plain goods has a shirt-bosom front, Byron collar and cuffs of the check of which the box-plaited skirt is made. A distinctive detail is the raglan line of the shoulders and a finished appearance is given to the outfit with narrow ribbon tie at the neck. Wool plaid is used for a smart frock that closes at the neck with a narrow linen collar and is buttoned down the front. The material is cut to present the plaid diagonally in the frock itself and a width of the goods sewn around the bottom of the skirt terminates to form deep pockets in front. With this dress is worn a narrow belt of black patent leather, black patent pumps and a tam of black velvet.

For Afternoon and Evening.
Afternoon and evening dress for girls is more pretentious than it has been for several years. In the more substantial materials, velvet, satin, taffeta and crepe are shown. Some of the designs are ultramodern, some are quaint period frocks. Taffeta is used for an evening dress made after a French conception, in cameo-pink taffeta, with skirt gathered full, and a large cape-collar attached to a plain bodice. A wide band of pink tulle borders both the skirt and the cape. A crepe satin dancing frock in a lovely shade of yellow is sleeveless, with a round neck in the bodice which blouses slightly over the hips. Metal lace and panne velvet are put together in a clever design in an evening dress for a girl of sixteen or older, the bodice and underskirt being made of the lace and the panier overskirt of velvet is draped in the striking manner of Louise Boulanger, ending in a bow at the back. Lace, both in the silk and metallized is used in some exceedingly pretty dance frocks, with velvet or silk ribbon feather trimming and fur. A silk dress of pale-blue georgette has a sleeveless, round neck yoke of silver-threaded lace. The short full-gathered skirt is attached to the blouse with three rows of blue velvet ribbon with a how and ends at one side and the bottom of the skirt is finished with a band of white fur.

Marie Cahill Bids For Songs That Tell a Story

MARY CAHILL
What I do for a bird's-eye view of a place I know where the sunflowers grow, just a bird's-eye view of my old Kentucky home.

Famous Singer Says Rhythm Is Everything Today

New York City.—Miss Marie Cahill, famous singer, is worried about the trend of the times. It's not the morals of the young nor prohibition which upset her. She is not one to look back at the good old days and bemoan their passing. On the whole, she thinks the modern world is exceedingly pleasant and profitable and she wouldn't go back to the past if she could. But—

"And there is really a very big but," says Miss Cahill, "they simply do not write songs that have good lyrics any more. If you think that isn't a tragedy, put yourself in my place. Years ago, I made my reputation on the words of songs. People in those days liked to know what their singers were singing."

"If you mention your words, you were as good as not to get a good review from the gallery. If you had a song, the words of which did not please the populace, you had to make up your mind to do without the lion's share of applause."

"That is why, then, I have always selected my songs for the lyrics. I had to hunt for months before I could find any really good topical song. After a lengthy search I did locate a delightful song—'Just A Bird's Eye View Of My Old Kentucky Home,' and it is really up to the old standards. Luck sent it my way, and but for that luck I might still be hunting."

The dance mad songs seldom have good lyrics. The tune's the thing with them. And in spite of the fact that I am an optimist, I still cannot help feeling that the decline of the lyric is a bad sign. After all, a country's philosophy is usually contained in its songs. The speeding up process is reflected in Tin Pan Alley.

"There is another thing that I find has been neglected, too. That is the training of singers. It used to be necessary really to study dancing, acting and the art of composure and presence of mind before one made one's debut as a singer. Now, if one has a voice and can shake the shoulders a little, that seems to be enough. But just the same, don't let anybody tell you that I am not an optimist."

One reason for Miss Cahill's optimism may be that she married her first producer and is still married to him.

The World We Know

No man's world is any bigger than the man himself. That which his eye can see, his ear can hear, his heart can feel, make up for him the universe. For no man has anything he can't use. What good is money to a Hottentot, or a magnificent picture to an idiot? The whole world for you lies under your own hat, and it is just as large and just as varied as your own mind will let it become.—Author Unknown.

Current Wit and Humor

There had been a blowout, and the father of the family was perspiring and profanely changing tires.

"I don't see why you have to talk that way," said his wife reproachfully. "You act as if it were a total loss. You never see the good in things."

"Well, what good is there in this?"

"Why, it tickled the baby so. He laughed right out loud when it went bang."

GRAVE QUESTION

Mayor—Whether to allow the cemetery to be placed so near town is a matter for serious thought.

Councilman—Yes, it's a grave question, no doubt.

The Essentials

"I want you to make me the outfit for my trial."

"Let me see," mused the experienced modiste. "You'll want a direct-testimony suit, a cross-examination gown, and something dainty and clinging to fault in."

Joke's on Them

Squire's Wife—And where's your daughter, Mrs. Hodge?

Mrs. Hodge—Well, to tell you the truth, mum, she was so useless in the house that I sent her out to domestic service.

An Inefficient Daughter

Parent—You ask for the hand of my daughter. Can you wash, darn, sew, nurse children and keep house?

Suitor—What has that got to do with it?

Parent—Well, my daughter can't.

Winsome Fashions for Little Folks

Simpler Models Vie With Gay, Bouffant Frocks to Delight Sub-Deb.

At this time of year every woman of fashion and every other woman who is the mother of girls, big or little, is concerned with the wardrobe of her children. It is a matter of moment, the outfit that is being prepared; perhaps as important as the question of dress will ever in youth present, says a fashion authority in the New York Times. That is, from the juvenile point of view, which is one of more sophistication than perhaps the girls of a former generation knew; and every budding belle of today learns soon all about her type and what is the mode and what she prefers. Comparisons are potent factors, and the feminine experience of rivalry comes early to stimulate ambition and to prompt the young lady in making her decisions. Not to be in style is something not to be endured, and pretty clothes were long ago found to be the most direct way to the heart of a girl.

Styles for children reflect in a measure those for their elders and in some ways the frocks that little girls are wearing are in some features really miniature models copied after those in the collections of both French and American designers. They are more feminine, with full gathered, plaited or tiered skirts; new kinds of sleeves, new necklines, much shirring, flouncing, needlework and fine detail, all of which contributes to a dainty finished quality in dress. That the manner of dressing a girl from babyhood to her teens has changed with the years is evident in the fashions.

The well-dressed young girl of today is neither as much of a baby nor as mature and overdressed as one in varying former years. She is simply different, illustrating different standards and conventions. Even a tiny girl is not now beruffled and beribboned in frocks that were overelaborated with lace and embroidery. Simplicity is apparent in good style and good taste, though it is often a costly simplicity. Clothes of the better sort are handmade if they are of light fabrics, and almost all sorts have at least a touch of needlework. Some of the newest and most attractive things in soft frocks for girls from the age of five to fifteen and more are much embroidered in one way and another—fine French embroidery, Italian drawdown combined with embroidery and the present needlework patterns which are so strikingly decorative.

White for Midwinter Season.
Much white is shown for the midwinter season, much all-white in both dresses and wraps, and some that is ornamented with needlework in the gayest colors. Crewel embroideries done in the patterns from the Balkan states, together with cross-stitch and hemstitching in color, are all shown on the season's models, in both white and in colors. Colors in the clothes for children forecast something of the styles for a season ahead, an assortment of the most lovely shades. These are very important, for they present some distinct achievements in the art of dyeing and are known by names that are most intriguing. Not any one color or even a certain few are conspicuously fashionable, for they are many.

For winter the browns, reds, blues and greens in numerous new shades are shown, with perhaps more brown and red than any others in response to the needs of the season. Wool brown, seal, tobacco, snuff and the light shades that are known as acorn, bark, pigskin, sirup, sawdust and polo tan are much used for both the one-piece frocks, suits and coats. In red there are many shades—burgundy, bordeaux, claret, Indian, troubadour and lobster. There are forest, spruce, fairway, almond sage, mignon and lido green, and festive shades of different sorts known as marigold, heart o' melen, meadow pink, sunkiss, begonia, parakeet and crocus. Blue appears to be having a revival in clothes for children as for grown-ups, and most lovely shades are shown under the titles of bluebird, Italian turquoise, crayon, Flemish blue, French blue, glacier, and for practical frocks, radio, sindbad, sailor and dark navy blue.

Shops, particularly those that deal most in unusual things for children, are offering as the top note of the season the smocked frock for girls of all sizes. It is usually in one piece, with the yoke, girdle and cuffs fitted by the stitching, which is done in the same or in a contrasting color. A dark-blue crepe de chine for a girl of ten is smocked in scarlet floss, forming a yoke both at the neck and at the waist to a line over the hips. Below the fullness of the skirt is laid in narrow plaits and the wide sleeves smocked at the wrist are left to ruffle over the hand. This model, made in brown, green, tan and in red, is a practical, comfortable and always chic little frock that is suitable for many occasions. In the pretty light shades or in white, smocked in colors, sometimes with embroidery introduced, it serves charmingly for dancing school, the matinee and many informal daytime parties.

Jersey for Everyday Frocks.

Jersey is the answer to the everyday frock for a girl of almost any age and, this season, is much used for very little ones. In the smallest sizes it is usually cut in one piece, rather roomy, with shirring at the neck and the wrists of full sleeves. Bloomers made of the same goods are made to just peep below the dress. Dresses for larger girls are more complex, with inlays and sections of material, either the same or in a contrast. Plaids are very good this season, not as much the large fancy plaids as the traditional tartans used alone or combined with plain goods.

A stylish little everyday frock for a girl between the years of eight and twelve is made of the new checked and plain velveteen. A straight jumper blouse of the plain goods has a shirt-bosom front, Byron collar and cuffs of the check of which the box-plaited skirt is made. A distinctive detail is the raglan line of the shoulders and a finished appearance is given to the outfit with narrow ribbon tie at the neck. Wool plaid is used for a smart frock that closes at the neck with a narrow linen collar and is buttoned down the front. The material is cut to present the plaid diagonally in the frock itself and a width of the goods sewn around the bottom of the skirt terminates to form deep pockets in front. With this dress is worn a narrow belt of black patent leather, black patent pumps and a tam of black velvet.

For Afternoon and Evening.

Afternoon and evening dress for girls is more pretentious than it has been for several years. In the more substantial materials, velvet, satin, taffeta and crepe are shown. Some of the designs are ultramodern, some are quaint period frocks. Taffeta is used for an evening dress made after a French conception, in cameo-pink taffeta, with skirt gathered full, and a large cape-collar attached to a plain bodice. A wide band of pink tulle borders both the skirt and the cape. A crepe satin dancing frock in a lovely shade of yellow is sleeveless, with a round neck in the bodice which blouses slightly over the hips. Metal lace and panne velvet are put together in a clever design in an evening dress for a girl of sixteen or older, the bodice and underskirt being made of the lace and the panier overskirt of velvet is draped in the striking manner of Louisa Boulanger, ending in a bow at the back. Lace, both in the silk and metallized is used in some exceedingly pretty dance frocks, with velvet or silk ribbon feather trimming and fur. A silk dress of pale-blue georgette has a sleeveless, round neck yoke of silver-threaded lace. The short full-gathered skirt is attached to the blouse with three rows of blue velvet ribbon with a bow and ends at one side and the bottom of the skirt is finished with a band of white fur.

Marie Cahill Begs For Songs That Tell a Story

MARY CAHILL
What did do for a bird's-eye view of a place I knew where the sun flowers grow. (Copyright 1926)

Famous Singer Says Rhythm Is Everything Today

New York City.—Miss Marie Cahill, famous singer, is worried about the trend of the times. It's not the morals of the young nor prohibition which upset her. She is not one to look back at the good old days and bemoan their passing. On the whole, she thinks the modern world is exceedingly pleasant and profitable and she wouldn't go back to the past if she could. But—
"And there is really a very big but," says Miss Cahill, "they simply do not write songs that have good lyrics any more. If you think that isn't a tragedy, put yourself in my place. Years ago, I made my reputation on the words of songs. People in those days liked to know what their singers were singing.
"If you mouthed your words, you were as good as not to get a good word from the gallery. If you had a song, the words of which did not please the populace, you had to make up your mind to do without the lion's share of applause.
"That is why, then, I have always selected my songs for the lyrics. I had to hunt for months before I could find any really good topical song. After a lengthy search I did locate a delightful song—"Just A Bird's Eye View Of My Old Kentucky Home," and it is really up to the old standards. Luck sent it my way, and but for that luck I might still be hunting.

The dance mad songs seldom have good lyrics. The tune's the thing with them. And in spite of the fact that I am an optimist, I still cannot help feeling that the decline of the lyric is a bad sign. After all, a country's philosophy is usually contained in its songs. The speeding up process is reflected in Tin Pan Alley.
"There is another thing that I find has been neglected, too. That is the training of singers. It used to be necessary really to study dancing, acting and the art of composure and presence of mind before one made one's debut as a singer. Now, if one has a voice and can shake the shoulders a little, that seems to be enough. But just the same, don't let anybody tell you that I am not an optimist."
One reason for Miss Cahill's optimism may be that she married her first producer and is still married to him.

The World We Know

No man's world is any bigger than the man himself. That which his eye can see, his ear can hear, his heart can feel, make up for him the universe. For no man has anything he can't use. What good is money to a Hottentot, or a magnificent picture to an idiot? The whole world for you lies under your own hat, and it is just as large and just as varied as your own mind will let it become.—Author Unknown.

Guess He Never Will

The old bachelor says that he has never met a girl who was prettier than she thought she was nor a man who was smarter than he thought he was.—Hillsboro News-Herald.

The Silver Lining

An optimist is a man who has lost all his teeth but two and is thankful that those two meet.

LOCALS DEFEAT ST. CLOUD CATHEDRALS

BLUE AND WHITE WIN BY 16 TO 11

GUIN STARTED SCORING, AND CHALKED UP 3 MORE FIELD GOALS

BRAINERD HIGH GIRLS DEFEAT ALUMNI 8 TO 2

The Blue and White wiped the St. Cloud Cathedral quint from their worries Saturday night in a victory of 16-11 while the Girl's team defeated the All Stars, 8-2.

The clash started in Brainerd's favor and continued on that basis until the final whistle the only close call coming during the second quarter when the count stood 6-6. The half ended 8-6 in favor of Brainerd.

Guin, center, started the scoring for the locals with a field goal in the first minutes of play and chalked up three more, before the end of the game. Orth contributed two cagers and a free throw and Wise, a free throw.

Brainerd outscored St. Cloud in the final period, registering 6 points to 3 for the maroon and gold, Guin coming through with two baskets and Fitzharris one.

Brainerd's standing in the conference is 500 per cent having won from Little Falls and Staples and lost to Wadena and Crosby. The next game will be with Motley here on next Friday night. Motley is reported to have a weak team so Brainerd's stand in the percentage column should become noticeable after the fray. The Girl's team and Boy's second team go to Crosby where the former play a return match.

The line-up: Brainerd—Orth, Fitzharris, forwards; Guin, center; DeRocher, Lowe, guards. Subs, Wise for Orth, Orth for Fitzharris, Fitzharris for Wise.

St. Cloud—Leis, Hocksburg, forwards; Blossingham, center; Halstrom, Denne, guards. Subs, Kiernan, guard; Tully, center.

The scoring: Field goals, Orth, 2; Fitzharris, 1; Guin, 4; Leis, 1; Blossingham, 2; Halstrom, 1.

Free throws made: Leis 0 out of 1, Blossingham, 1-2, Halstrom, 1-1, Denne, 1-1, Orth, 1-2, Fitzharris, 0-1, Guin, 0-3, Wise, 1-1.

RAINBOWS DEFEAT ISLE, 16 TO 14

GAME CLEAN AND FAST FROM START TO FINISH, NO FOULS CALLED

The Brainerd Rainbows won from the fast Isle team Saturday night on the latter's floor by a score of 16 to 14. The game was clean and fast from start to finish and not a single foul was called on either team.

The Rainbows led throughout the game and stood off the rushes of the Isle basketballers. Only five men made the trip. Scoring honors go to Larson and Ziebell who each contributed four baskets. These men had a dead eye for the hoop and pulled off some neat shots from the sides of the court. Lawrenz, Fitzsimmons, and Peterson played a strong defensive game, breaking up play after play of the Isle team.

The score was 16 to 12 at the three minute period and Isle dropped in a basket and from then on it was a real battle. The Rainbows changed their style of defense to man for man and thus held them scoreless for the rest of the game.

Penn and Karlstrom were the bright lights for Isle, the former playing the best defensive game and scoring eight points while the latter scored four points.

Most of the men of the Rainbows squad who have been on the sick list have fully recuperated from their recent illness and are going to be in the best of condition for their battle with the Two Harbors quint on Tuesday night.

1924 CHAMPIONS TO PLAY RAINBOWS TOMORROW NIGHT

STATE H. S. CHAMPS ARE NOW TWO HARBORS INDEPENDENTS

RAINBOWS WORKING HARD TO OVERCOME FORMER DEFEAT BY ALL STARS

Tomorrow night the Rainbows will face one of their biggest tests of the season, when they meet the Two Harbors All Stars on the local high school floor. The north shore squad is rated as one of the classiest in the northeastern part of the state.

The visiting quint is almost identically the same as that which won the state high school championship in 1924. Four of the men are now with the independents, and their fifth man is a clever center, Freeman, who handles his six feet of height to advantage in the court game.

Anderson, a guard, is strong on defense and is a clever dribbler. He was also a star at Hamline university. The Mattson brothers are real workers when it comes to shooting baskets.

The preliminary game will find the Little Tigers facing the Flying Aces Juniors for the second time in a week. Last Wednesday the Juniors defeated the Tigers by a 13 to 8 score, and the Tigers are out to even the count.

All basketball fans are invited to come out and see this evening of basketball fun. A big crowd is hoped for. Come and see a real team play against the Rainbows. It takes a real team to hold Engbretson scoreless, and that is what the Two Harbors team did in their last game.

HAS LONG TALK WITH ED BARROWS

AFTER CONFERRING WITH THE BUSINESS MANAGER, ALSO MEETS HUGGINS

YANKES, WITH THE LARGEST TREASURY, CAN BID HIGH-EST FOR HIS SERVICES

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Staff Correspondent) New York, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Tris Speaker, deposed manager of the Cleveland Indians, according to gossip and bets being offered here today, will become a member of the New York Yankees.

After a conference in Philadelphia with Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, Speaker came here and had a long talk with Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, and Miller Huggins, field manager.

If terms were not reached during the conference, it probably was because of the promise given by Speaker to Clarke Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, that he would not close with any other club until he had heard Washington's proposition.

If Speaker is looking for money and is considering his future, the Yankees, no doubt, with the largest treasury in the league, could offer him a better proposition than the Athletics or the Senators.

Connie Mack has spent about as much money as he can afford in building up the team since the 1926 season closed and Washington hasn't any too much wealth.

It was taken for granted that Speaker could command a big bonus for signing a contract as well as getting a good salary. Zach Wheat, when he was released by the Brooklyn Robins, got a bonus of at least $5,000 for signing a contract with the Athletics.

New York fans are wondering, however, what the Yanks figure on doing with Speaker. He is too valuable a player to sit on the bench and if they used him in the outfield they would have to displace Earl Combs.

Combs isn't a great star but he's a good ball player. He is faster than Speaker, he hit within a few points of the former Cleveland star last season and his only fielding weakness is his arm.

It would be folly, of course, to think of taking Bob Meusel or Babe Ruth out of regular outfield positions in favor of Speaker.

There are other reasons, however, why the Yankees wanted Speaker. He would be a valuable man as an alternate felder with Combs and as a substitute for use in case of injuries. Meusel was out of the game for months last season with a broken leg and Combs has an ankle that may crack any time.

There are business reasons, too, that would make Speaker worth big box office money. He would be an additional drawing card to counteract the Giants' star, Rogers Hornsby.

The Philadelphia Athletics look to be the chief rival of the Yankees in the coming pennant race and Speaker might be the one influence that would give the Athletics the balance and the experience they have been missing.

FRENCH TENNIS STAR MAY TOUR THE WORLD NEXT SEASON

New York, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, either will tour the world next season or return to the United States under plans being considered by C. C. Pyle, her manager.

After playing in thirty-seven cities on an American tour, Mlle. Lenglen and her troupe were resting and shopping today. The French girl will have $100,000 to spend, it was estimated by Bill Pickens, who managed the tour.

She was guaranteed $60,000 and one half of the net receipts. Miss Mary K. Browne, American member of the troupe, will realize about $50,000 and Vinnie Richards about $40,000. Pyle's share will be at least $50,000, Pickens said.

Vincent Richards Ill

New York—Vincent Richards, national tennis star, who returned yesterday with the Pyle troupe, is ill and may not be able to play for two months. His doctors fear he has gall stones and may have to undergo an operation.

LOCALS DEFEAT ST. CLOUD CATHEDRALS

BLUE AND WHITE WIN BY 16 TO 11

GUIN STARTED SCORING, AND CHALKED UP 3 MORE FIELD GOALS

BRAINERD HIGH GIRLS DEFEAT ALUMNI 8 TO 2

The Blue and White wiped the St. Cloud Cathedral quint from their worries Saturday night in a victory of 16-11 while the Girl's team defeated the All Stars, 8-2.

The clash started in Brainerd's favor and continued on that basis until the final whistle the only close call coming during the second quarter when the count stood 6-6. The half ended 8-6 in favor of Brainerd.

Guin, center, started the scoring for the locals with a field goal in the first minutes of play and chalked up three more before the end of the game. Orth contributed two cagers and a free throw and Wise, a free throw.

Brainerd outscored St. Cloud in the final period, registering 6 points to 3 for the maroon and gold, Guin coming through with two baskets and Fitzharris one.

Brainerd's standing in the conference is 500 per cent having won from Little Falls and Staples and lost to Wadena and Crosby. The next game will be with Motley here on next Friday night. Motley is reported to have a weak team so Brainerd's stand in the percentage column should become noticeable after the fray. The Girl's team and Boy's second team go to Crosby where the former play a return match.

The line-up:
Brainerd—Orth, Fitzharris, forwards; Guin, center; DeRocher, Lowe, guards. Subs, Wise for Orth, Orth for Fitzharris, Fitzharris for Wise.

St. Cloud—Leis, Hocksburg, forwards; Blossingham, center; Halstrom, Denne, guards. Subs, Kierman, guard; Tully, center.

The scoring:
Field goals, Orth, 2; Fitzharris, 1; Guin, 4; Leis, 1; Blossingham, 2; Halstrom, 1.
Free throws made:
Leis 0 out of 1, Blossingham, 1-2, Halstrom, 1-1, Denne, 1-1, Orth, 1-2, Fitzharris, 0-1, Guin, 0-3, Wise, 1-1.

RAINBOWS DEFEAT ISLE, 16 TO 14

GAME CLEAN AND FAST FROM START TO FINISH, NO FOULS CALLED

The Brainerd Rainbows won from the fast Isle team Saturday night on the latter's floor by a score of 16 to 14. The game was clean and fast from start to finish and not a single foul was called on either team.

The Rainbows led throughout the game and stood off the rushes of the Isle basketballers. Only five men made the trip. Scoring honors go to Larson and Ziebell who each contributed four baskets. These men had a dead eye for the hoop and pulled off some near shots from the sides of the court. Lawrenz, Fitzsimmons, and Peterson played a strong defensive game, breaking up play after play of the Isle team.

The score was 16 to 12 at the three minute period and Isle dropped in a basket and from then on it was a real battle. The Rainbows changed their style of defense to man for man and thus held them scoreless for the rest of the game.

Penn and Karlstrom were the bright lights for Isle, the former playing the best defensive game and scoring eight points while the latter scored four points.

Most of the men of the Rainbows squad who have been on the sick list have fully recuperated from their recent illness and are going to be in the best of condition for their battle with the Two Harbors quint on Tuesday night.

1924 CHAMPIONS TO PLAY RAINBOWS TOMORROW NIGHT

STATE H. S. CHAMPS ARE NOW TWO HARBORS INDEPENDENTS

RAINBOWS WORKING HARD TO OVERCOME FORMER DEFEAT BY ALL STARS

Tomorrow night the Rainbows will face one of their biggest tests of the season, when they meet the Two Harbors All Stars on the local high school floor. The north shore squad is rated as one of the classiest in the northeastern part of the state.

The visiting quint is almost identical the same as that which won the state high school championship in 1924. Four of the men are now with the independents, and their fifth man is a clever center, Freeman, who handles his six feet of height to advantage in the court game.

Anderson, a guard is strong on defense and is a clever dribbler. He was also a star at Hamline university. The Mattson brothers are real workers when it comes to shooting baskets.

The preliminary game will find the Little Tigers facing the Flying Aces Juniors for the second time in a week. Last Wednesday the Juniors defeated the Tigers by a 13 to 8 score, and the Tigers are out to even the count.

All basketball fans are invited to come out and see this evening of basketball fun. A big crowd is hoped for. Come and see a real team play against the Rainbows. It takes a real team to hold Engbreton scoreless, and that is what the Two Harbors team did in their last game.

HAS LONG TALK WITH ED BARROWS

AFTER CONFERRING WITH THE BUSINESS MANAGER, ALSO MEETS HUGGINS

YANKEES, WITH THE LARGEST TREASURY, CAN BID HIGHEST FOR HIS SERVICES

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Tris Speaker, deposed manager of the Cleveland Indians, according to gossip and bets being offered here today, will become a member of the New York Yankees.

After a conference in Philadelphia with Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, Speaker came here and had a long talk with Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, and Miller Huggins, field manager.

If terms were not reached during the conference, it probably was because of the promise given by Speaker to Clarke Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, that he would not close with any other club until he had heard Washington's proposition.

If Speaker is looking for money and is considering his future, the Yankees, no doubt, with the largest treasury in the league, could offer him a better proposition than the Athletics or the Senators.

Connie Mack has spent about as much money as he can afford in building up the team since the 1926 season closed and Washington hasn't any too much wealth.

It was taken for granted that Speaker could command a big bonus for signing a contract as well as getting a good salary. Zach Wheat, when he was released by the Brooklyn Robins, got a bonus of at least $5,000 for signing a contract with the Athletics.

New York fans are wondering, however, what the Yanks figure on doing with Speaker. He is too valuable a player to sit on the bench and if they used him in the outfield they would have to displace Earl Combs.

Combs isn't a great star but he's a good ball player. He is faster than Speaker, he hit within a few points of the former Cleveland star last season and his only fielding weakness is his arm.

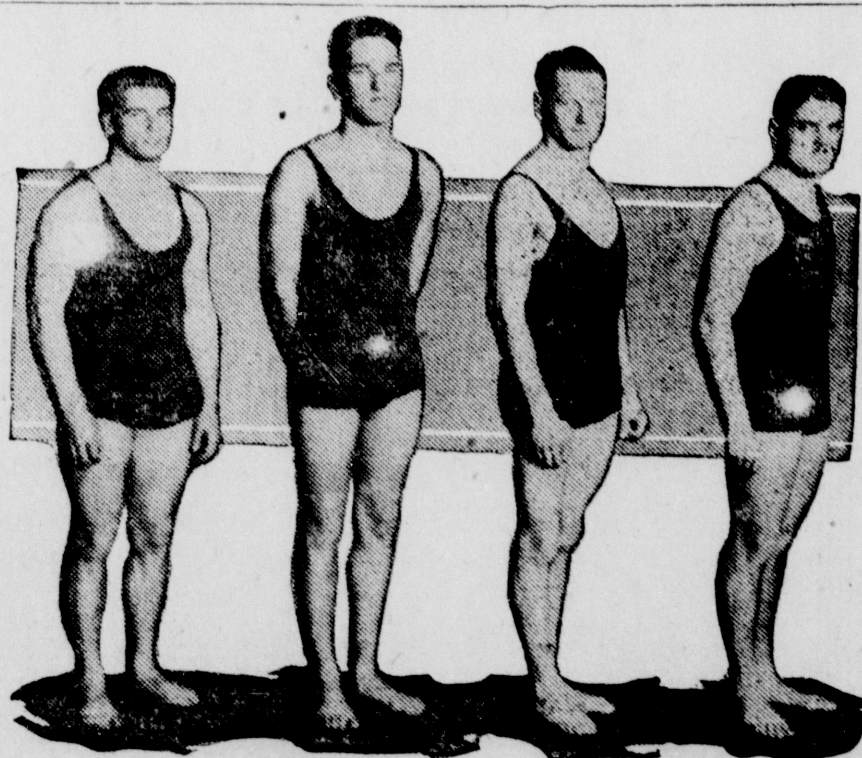

It would be folly, of course, to think of taking Bob Meusel or Babe Ruth out of regular outfield positions in favor of Speaker.

There are other reasons, however, why the Yankees wanted Speaker. He would be a valuable man as an alternate fielder with Combs and as a substitute for use in case of injuries. Meusel was out of the game for months last season with a broken leg and Combs has an ankle that may crack any time.

There are business reasons, too, that would make Speaker worth big box office money. He would be an additional drawing card to counteract the Giants' star, Rogers Hornsby.

The Philadelphia Athletics look to be the chief rival of the Yankees in the coming pennant race and Speaker might be the one influence that would give the Athletics the balance and the experience they have been missing.

YOUTH CONFESSES TO ATTEMPTED HOLDUP

Wilfred Cartwright Makes Statement to County Authorities Late Saturday

STOLE GIRL'S CLOTHING

Threw Gun in River and Clothing in Empty Box Car, He Said

Wilfred Cartwright Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock confessed to County Sheriff Claus A. Theorin and county justice officials to the attempted holdup of the John M. Bye Clothing Co. old store on Front street, Friday afternoon between the hour of 3 to 4 o'clock.

Cartwright who stated that he would be 19 years old on March 2, 1927, declared to the authorities that he wished to reveal everything connected with the attempted robbery, "take his medicine like a man," and then learn a trade and try to make something out of his life.

The youth gave as the reason for the rash act that he needed money to pay up old bills and that he felt that as others had committed highway robbery and made a successful getaway he also could do it. He said he planned to get enough money to pay his bills and then leave the city.

On questioning Cartwright confessed that the night before the attempted holdup he had visited at the house of a "girl friend." There he had stolen a girl's skirt, coat and a hat. Friday afternoon he had dressed in these clothes at his rooming house, left the house about 3 o'clock and proceeded on his way to the Bye Clothing Company store. He said he went down the alley and entered the rear door of the store, presented the card asking for the money, produced the gun and pointed it at the cashier. His nerve failed him, he confessed, when Mrs. Ethel Fox, cashier, recognized him and Mr. Bye came towards them. He fled through the rear door, down the alley behind the new Elks building and went over behind the Wm. Nelson fuel yard. From there he walked through alleys and streets over to the Mississippi River bridge on West Laurel street where he threw the gun into the river, he said.

After he had disposed of the gun he returned to the alley near the Wm. Nelson fuel yard, took off the girls apparel and started for home. On crossing the railway tracks near the stock yards a freight train came along and he threw the girl's clothing into an empty box car, he stated in his confession.

Cartwright emphatically stated that there were no bullets in the gun. He said he had taken the weapon away from a 11 year old boy during the Christmas holidays because "the boy was too young to be carrying around a gun."

Mrs. Ethel Fox, cashier of the Bye Clothing Co. store this morning stated:

"I was sitting at the desk when a girl came into the store through the back door with a handkerchief over her face. She handed me a card which read 'Hand over the money or I'll shoot.' When I looked up the gun was being pointed at me. I realized that it was someone I knew. I got up and walked toward the files. He followed me into the office. When I reached the file I looked at him closely and then I was able to place him. I said 'It's William Cartwright,' and then I called Mr. Bye's name. Although his name is Wilfred I have always called him William. The minute I spoke his name he turned around and hurried out the back door."

Young Cartwright will be arraigned in municipal court at an early session at which hearing he will likely waive examination and be turned over to the district court.

To Increase the Value of Our Service

It is very necessary in order to give the very best of service that we take advantage of everything offered for our use to keep our ideas and standards up to date. With this thought in mind we have had Miss Huntley leave this week to attend the Gossard school of corseting so that she may learn all the very newest ideas presented in proper corseting, whether it be the narrow confiner or the completes, which are best for some figures.

Also it is very essential at times to be able to make proper medical fittings and this is best done by taking this course from time to time. Miss Huntley will be better equipped than ever to do this properly after her return.

Bear this in mind, when selecting your next garment, that you will be able to be properly and comfortably fitted at our Corset Department.

BAIL SET AT $500

Arrested by Deputy Sheriff Following Chase in Car for 12 Miles

John Hill was arraigned in municipal court this morning on the charge of transportation of liquor and on waiving examination he was turned over to the district court on bail of $500. Judge Lamonte P. Koop presided.

Hill was recently captured by Deputy Sheriff C. W. Oberg after a chase of 12 miles in an automobile. Moonshine was found in his possession in the car at that time.

Mike Schwab pleaded guilty to intoxication and was fined $10.

GAVE POOR CHECK TO GARAGE MAN

E. J. Gottschalk Arrested for Issuing Check Without Funds in Bank

TO BE ARRAIGNED

Ex-Virginia Chief of Police Starts Six Months Sentence Here

E. J. Gottschalk was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriff C. W. Oberg at Pine City on the charge of issuing a check without funds on the First State bank of Henriette in Pine county to Louis Stirling of Emily to the amount of $21.75. The check was issued on June 28, 1926.

The check was issued by Gottschalk at Emily where he had repairs done to his car by Louis Stirling.

Gottschalk will be given his initial hearing shortly. Ellis Walsh, formerly chief of police at Virginia has started serving a six months sentence at the county jail here. He was sentenced at Duluth recently for sale of liquor.

ROADS CLEARED OF SNOW

Heavy Snowfall Followed by Strong Winds Blocked Highways

The heavy snowfall followed by winds Saturday and Sunday almost completely blocked traffic in the county over the week end but this morning the majority of the roads were cleared.

State roads have been cleared through the work of the snowplows and all state aid roads were cleared with the exception of state aid road No. 3 which will be cleared by tonight.

To Increase the Value of Our Service

It is very necessary in order to give the very best of service that we take advantage of everything offered for our use to keep our ideas and standards up to date. With this thought in mind we have had Miss Huntley leave this week to attend the Gossard school of corseting so that she may learn all the very newest ideas presented in proper corseting, whether it be the narrow confiner or the completes, which are best for some figures.

Also it is very essential at times to be able to make proper medical fittings and this is best done by taking this course from time to time. Miss Huntley will be better equipped than ever to do this properly after her return.

Bear this in mind, when selecting your next garment, that you will be able to be properly and comfortably fitted at our Corset Department.

RULES ADOPTED FOR HOCKEY LEAGUE HERE

BRAINERD HOCKEY PROMOTERS
ENDORSE RULES OF AMERICAN HOCKEY ASSN.

HOCKEY, AN INFANT GAME IN
UNITED STATES, IS GAIN-
ING PROMINENCE

Continuing the installments of rules and regulations of hockey as outlined by the American Hockey Association the following regulations deal further with the proper method of handling of games and the method of playing:

Foul Play

13. Any of the following offences shall be considered foul play, and the referee shall impose penalties as hereunder specified:

MAJOR FOULS—Five minutes' minimum penalty.

(a) Deliberately disabling an opponent by hitting, hooking or cross-checking with the stick.

(b) Kicking an opponent with skate.

(c) Throwing stick, which might prevent scoring a goal.

(d) Abusive or profane language to officials, players or spectators.

MINOR FOULS—Two to five minutes' penalty, no substitute.

(a) Deliberately cross-checking an opponent.

(b) Deliberately tripping an opponent.

(c) Deliberately charging an opponent.

(d) Deliberately delaying game.

(e) Deliberately holding an opponent by the body, uniform or stick.

(f) Offside interference.

(h) No ragging or stalling behind goals.

(g) Deliberately charging goalkeeper to score or otherwise.

No player while offside shall interfere or obstruct an opponent by skating in front of player in possession of the puck or obstruct in any way whatever. For violation of this rule the referee shall warn the offending player once and for every repetition of the offense shall penalize him three minutes.

Should major fouls or accidents occur after all the players of a club have participated in a match, the opposing club must drop one of their players to equalize.

While imposing penalty the referee may or may not stop the game.

There shall be no face within ten feet of the goals for any reason, and when puck is being faced no player shall be allowed within five feet of the players facing.

If in the opinion of the referee a defending player has deliberately committed a foul to prevent a score he shall not stop the player until that play has been completed.

A fair bodycheck shall be when a player bodies an opponent with the hip or side of the body when standing still or skating at a slow rate of speed; if, however, the player is skating fast or uses his knee, elbow or shoulder, it will be considered charging and be penalized accordingly.

There will be no bodychecking within ten feet of the boards. Penalty two to five minutes.

When the Puck Leaves the Ice

14. When the puck goes off the ice behind the goal line it shall be brought out by the referee to the goal line, on a line at right angles thereto, from the point at which it left the ice but not nearer than five yards to either goal post, and there faced.

When the puck goes off the ice at the side it shall be similarly faced three yards from the side.

When the puck hits the referee play shall cease and the puck faced where the accident occurs.

Puck shall never be faced nearer than five yards to goal.

Goal-Keeper

15. Goalkeeper may stop puck in any position or manner he wishes. Goalkeeper may catch or stop puck with hands but not hold puck longer than three seconds; he may drop puck on ice but not more than ten feet, or carry puck in any manner more than ten feet from goal.

It shall not be called an offside for goalkeeper to pass puck with stick to player on his side up to first blue line.

Goalkeeper may wear pads which shall not be more than fourteen inches in width over all.

Change of Players

16. Six extra players, one of whom must be a goal-keeper, may act as substitutes on each team during a match (making twelve players altogether), and a change of players may be made at any time by the substitute or substitutes reporting to the referee, when that official has stopped the play, but must not get on the ice while play is in progress; such substitute or substitutes must be all ready to play and must take his or their position without delaying the game. The player for whom the substitute is made must also leave the ice promptly when the substitute appears. Should any player be injured during the match, break a skate, or from any accident be compelled to leave the ice, his side shall immediately put on a substitute to equalize the teams, and the match proceed until such time as the player compelled to retire because of accident is ready to return. Any player who enters the game as a substitute, without reporting to the referee, shall be ruled off for two minutes.

Stoppages

17. Should any match be stopped by the referee by reason of any infringement of any of the rules or because of an accident or change of players, the puck shall be faced again at the spot where it was last played before such infringement, accident or change of players will have occurred.

18. Shall either team report on the ice late after intermission, having been duly notified by the timekeepers at least three minutes before the expiration of their last period, the offending team shall drop one player for as many minutes or fractions thereof as the team is late in reporting, subject to the discretion of the referee.

"Too Tired" to Enjoy Yourself?

Let This Stimulative Tonic Build Up Your Energy

Help your digestive apparatus do its full duty. Give your blood the enrichment that brings vigor. Smooth out the "kinks" in your nerves. Get yourself normal, and you won't always be complaining of a "tired feeling."

Your body needs the right kind of digestive stimulation to keep it functioning with 100% efficiency. That "all in" feeling is unnecessary. A remarkable stimulant- tonic has been devised for just such conditions as these. It is delightfully palatable and is prepared by an old Virginia concern in business for nearly a century. Druggists and physicians have come to know this stimulant as "Old Monticello Tonic." Get a bottle today from your druggist, take a small wineglass full before the next meal—see how much better you eat—feel the glow of stimulated functions throughout the body.

A few days' treatment will bring a quick change in run-down conditions and overcome lack of energy. —Advt.

Causeless Suicide

Fearing he had consumption, a Chelmsford (England) man threw paraffin oil over himself and tried to set his clothing alight. His wife prevented him. He then walked across some fields and jumped into the river. At the inquest a verdict of suicide during temporary insanity was returned. A doctor said the man's fears were groundless.

Girls! Tell This To Your Skinny Friend

Tell him that the quick easy way to put pounds of solid flesh on his bones is to take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Tell him it's the modern way to take nasty tasting, stomach upsetting cod liver oil—that these tablets are rich in vitamins and besides helping him to fill out his flat chest and sunken cheeks and neck that the vitalizing vitamins in McCoy's will make him strong and vigorous and give him more ambition.

Tell him that he can get 60 tablets for 60 cents at H. P. Dunn's, C. D. Johnson's or any druggist anywhere and that if he isn't delighted after a 30 day test he can have his money back. —Advt.

RED PEPPER FOR COLDS IN CHEST

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

Red Pepper Rub is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known. —Advt.

RULES ADOPTED FOR HOCKEY LEAGUE HERE

BRAINERD HOCKEY PROMOTERS
ENDORSE RULES OF AMERICAN HOCKEY ASSN.

HOCKEY, AN INFANT GAME IN
UNITED STATES, IS GAIN-
ING PROMINENCE

Continuing the installments of rules and regulations of hockey as outlined by the American Hockey Association the following regulations deal further with the proper method of handling of games and the method of playing:

Foul Play

13. Any of the following offenses shall be considered foul play, and the referee shall impose penalties as hereunder specified:

MAJOR FOULS—Five minutes' minimum penalty.

(a) Deliberately disabling an opponent by hitting, hooking or cross-checking with the stick.

(b) Kicking an opponent with skate.

(c) Throwing stick, which might prevent scoring a goal.

(d) Abusive or profane language to officials, players or spectators.

MINOR FOULS—Two to five minutes' penalty, no substitute.

(a) Deliberately cross-checking an opponent.

(b) Deliberately tripping an opponent.

(c) Deliberately charging an opponent.

(d) Deliberately delaying game.

(e) Deliberately holding an opponent by the body, uniform or stick.

(f) Offside interference.

(g) No tagging or stalling behind goals.

(h) Deliberately charging goalkeeper to score or otherwise.

No player while offside shall interfere or obstruct an opponent by skating in front of player in possession of the puck or obstruct in any way whatever. For violation of this rule the referee shall warn the offending player once and for every repetition of the offense shall penalize him three minutes.

Should major fouls or accidents occur after all the players of a club have participated in a match, the opposing club must drop one of their players to equalize.

While imposing penalty the referee may or may not stop the game.

There shall be no face within ten feet of the goals for any reason, and when puck is being faced no player shall be allowed within five feet of the players facing.

If in the opinion of the referee a defending player has deliberately committed a foul to prevent a score he shall not stop the player until that play has been completed.

A fair bodycheck shall be when a player bodies an opponent with the hip or side of the body when standing still or skating at a slow rate of speed; if, however, the player is skating fast or uses his knee, elbow or shoulder, it will be considered charging and will be penalized accordingly.

There will be no bodychecking within ten feet of the boards. Penalty two to five minutes.

When the Puck Leaves the Ice

14. When the puck goes off the ice behind the goal line it shall be brought out by the referee to the goal line, on a line at right angles thereto, from the point at which it left the ice but not nearer than five yards to either goal post, and there faced.

When the puck goes off the ice at the side it shall be similarly faced three yards from the side.

When the puck hits the referee play shall cease and the puck faced where the accident occurs.

Puck shall never be faced nearer than five yards to goal.

Goal-keeper

15. Goalkeeper may stop puck in any position or manner he wishes. Goalkeeper may catch or stop puck with hands but not hold puck longer than three seconds; he may drop puck on ice but not more than ten feet, or carry puck in any manner more than ten feet from goal.

It shall not be called an offside for goalkeeper to pass puck with stick to player on his side up to first blue line.

Goalkeeper may wear pads which shall not be more than fourteen inches in width over all.

Change of Players

16. Six extra players, one of whom must be a goal-keeper, may act as substitutes on each team during a match (making twelve players altogether), and a change of players may be made at any time by the substitute or substitutes reporting to the referee, when that official has stopped the play, but must not get on the ice while play is in progress; such substitute or substitutes must be all ready to play and must take his or their position without delaying the game. The player for whom the substitute is made must also leave the ice promptly when the substitute appears. Should any player be injured during the match, break a skate, or from any accident be compelled to leave the ice, his side shall immediately put on a substitute to equalize the teams, and the match proceed until such time as the player compelled to retire because of accident is ready to return. Any player who enters the game as a substitute, without reporting to the referee, shall be ruled off for two minutes.

Stoppages

17. Should any match be stopped by the referee by reason of any infringement of any of the rules or because of an accident or change of players, the puck shall be faced again at the spot where it was last played before such infringement, accident or change of players will have occurred.

18. Shall either team report on the ice late after intermission, having been duly notified by the timekeepers at least three minutes before the expiration of their last period, the offending team shall drop one man for as many minutes or fractions thereof as the team is late in reporting, subject to the discretion of the referee.

(The End)

19. Should either team report on the ice late after intermission, having been duly notified by the timekeepers at least three minutes before the expiration of their last period, the offending team shall drop one man for as many minutes or fractions thereof as the team is late in reporting, subject to the discretion of the referee.

20. Should either team report on the ice late after intermission, having been duly notified by the timekeepers at least three minutes before the expiration of their last period, the offending team shall drop one man for as many minutes or fractions thereof as the team is late in reporting, subject to the discretion of the referee.

21. Should either team report on the ice late after intermission, having been duly notified by the timekeepers at least three minutes before the expiration of their last period, the offending team shall drop one man for as many minutes or fractions thereof as the team is late in reporting, subject to the discretion of the referee.

22. Should either team report on the ice late after intermission, having been duly notified by the timekeepers at least three minutes before the expiration of their last period, the offending team shall drop one man for as many minutes or fractions thereof as the team is late in reporting, subject to the discretion of the referee.

23. Should either team report on the ice late after intermission, having been duly notified by the timekeepers at least three minutes before the expiration of their last period, the offending team shall drop one man for as many minutes or fractions thereof as the team is late in reporting, subject to the discretion of the referee.

24. Should either team report on the ice late after intermission, having been duly notified by the timekeepers at least three minutes before the expiration of their last period, the offending team shall drop one man for as many minutes or fractions thereof as the team is late in reporting, subject to the discretion of the referee.

Jack Delaney Is After Tunney

The light heavyweight class seems due to lose its present champion, Jack Delaney, but not through his being defeated. Jack has started a campaign against heavyweights with a view of meeting Tunney for the title. The photograph shows Delaney getting into shape by bowling.

"Too Tired" to Enjoy Yourself?

Let This Stimulative Tonic
Build Up Your Energy

Help your digestive apparatus do its full duty. Give your blood the enrichment that brings vigor. Smooth out the "kinks" in your nerves. Get yourself normal, and you won't always be complaining of a "tired feeling."

Your body needs the right kind of digestive stimulation to keep it functioning with 100% efficiency. That "all in" feeling is unnecessary.

A remarkable stimulant- tonic has been devised for just such conditions as these. It is delightfully palatable and is prepared by an old Virginia concern in business for nearly a century. Druggists and physicians have come to know this stimulant as "Old Monticello Tonic." Get a bottle today from your druggist, take a small wineglass full before the next meal—see how much better you eat—feel the glow of stimulated functions throughout the body.

A few days' treatment will bring a quick change in run-down conditions and overcome lack of energy.
